THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION.

VOL. XXIII ATLANTA, GA., FRIDAY MORNING, JANUARY 15, 1892. PRICE FIVE CENTS

NEW YORK'S VOTE.

The World Polls the Congressmen of That State,

AND THEY ALL SEEM TO SAY "HILL"

It Is Agreed That He Will Get the Delegation,

AND THAT CLEVELAND WILL NOT,

But the Nominee Cannot Be Located Until the Time Comes Nearer.

WASHINGTON, January 14.—[Special.]—The New York World of today contains interviews with nearly all the democratic congressmen from that state, on the question of who will get the New York delegation to the next democratic convention.

Bourke Cochrane says Hill will get the entire New York delegation. Although it has not been arranged, he says nothing could be plainer.

Amos Cummings says: "Senator Hill will undoubtedly have the delegation to the national convention."

Tim Campbell thinks likewise, though he will not commit himself as to who he is personally for.

Of Course It Is Hill.

Congressman Dunphy says: "Why, of course, Hill will receive the New York delegation, and I don't think Mr. Cleveland will get a single vote from New York. In any event, the unit rule will be adopted and the entire strength of the delegation will go for Hill."

Even Dan Lockwood Admits It.

Dan Lockwood, of Buffalo, the man who placed Grover Cleveland in nomination for mayor of Buffalo, governor of New York and president of the United States, said: "From the present outlook, I think Senator Hill will have the New York delegation in his favor. The state committee is a Hill committee, and the machinery is in the hands of his friends."

But We Must Wait.

All of the congressmen interviewed express the opinion that legislation might come up before congress within the next few months which would affect the entire situation, not as to the standing of New York state so much as that of the country, and they agree that it is impossible right now to predict with any degree of certainty who will get the next nomination.

Senator Hill's Reception in the House.

Senator David Bennett Hill made a great big hit in the house of representatives today.

For over an hour he held a regular levee in the lobby on the democratic side of the house.

It was the first time Senator Hill had visited the house, and he was escorted there by Amos Cummings and Bourke Cochrane, and as soon as his presence became known his many admirers among the members left their seats and rushed pell mell to where the New York senator stood. There was a regular scramble to shake hands with him. Old members of the house say they never witnessed such an ovation in the house to any one who was not a member of the house. The reception to Senator Hill is regarded by shrewd politicians as a great display of strength upon the part of Senator Hill as a presidential candidate. Men who a few months ago were abusing Hill, and saying that only Cleveland would be the democratic standard bearer, were among the most enthusiastic who took part in the reception. Even Speaker Pro Tem, McMillin left the chair to participate in the reception to the New York senator, and the chairman of nearly every committee in the house was like wise on hand to welcome him. Of course all the New York members were there, and a number of the Kentucky and Missouri congressmen were equally as enthusiastic in welcoming the New Yorker.

The Enthusiastic Delegations.

The solid delegations from Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana, and most of those from Texas, Tennessee and Arkansas, crowded around with the New Yorkers. But the welcome accorded him by a number of Missourians and Kentuckians is particularly significant, in view of the fact that the leading papers of those two states have been the most enthusiastic in their advocacy of Mr. Cleveland's claims upon the presidential nomination. It would seem to indicate, particularly in regard to Kentucky, that the statement in these dispatches several days ago, to the fact that a truce was being patched up between Editor Watterson and Governor Hill is true. In regard to Missouri, the enthusiasm of the majority of the Missouri congressmen in welcoming Senator Hill shows that The St. Louis Republic does not control that state by any means. One of the greatest surprises to the witnesses of the reception accorded Senator Hill was the fact that some of Mr. Mills's most intimate personal friends and supporters were among those who was most cordial in their welcome to the New York senator. Mr. Brockenridge, of Arkansas, was one of the first on the scene, and he was followed by a number of other gentleman who were considered intimate personal friends of Mr. Cleveland when he occupied the white house.

Mr. Dockery's Temper.

The only display of any ill feeling was by Mr. Dockery, of Missouri, an enthusiastic Cleveland man, who happened to be making a speech at the time. The members, instead of listening to him, had crowded back in the lobby to shake the hand of the New Yorker. Mr. Dockery didn't like this, and referred with some display of temper to the fact that a reception was going on in the rear which created so much noise that he could hardly hear himself. Mr. Covert, who was in the chair, rapped for order, and Senator Hill, who had been standing in the midst of a very large crowd of members, took a seat. But it was only for an instant. So many members crowded around to meet him that the senator had to rise and stand for more than an hour.

Indeed, the reception to Senator Hill was very warm and enthusiastic.

Working for Alger.

General Russell A. Alger, of Michigan, was here today, and was in conference with Senator Quay for several hours. Of course it is not known just what they discussed, but it is known that Quay is very decidedly opposed to Harrison's renomination, and that General Alger expected to be a candidate for the republican nomination. Quay is a Blaine man to all outward appearances right now, but no one knows better than the Pennsylvanian that Mr. Blaine's health is so extremely bad that he would not undertake a campaign for the nomination. Indeed a few knowing ones here predict that Quay is for Alger, that he is getting up a Blaine boom, now, simply for the purpose of drawing from Harrison, and then transferring the strength drawn by the magnetic man from Maine to Alger. It seems Quay is determined to defeat Harrison.

Mr. Enloe on Congressional Funerals.

Mr. Enloe, of Tennessee, seems determined that there shall be no more congressional funerals.

He seems to think that they are no more than junketing tours, the expenses of which have to be borne out of the public treasury. Believing this, he has introduced a bill providing that not exceeding $500 shall be appropriated towards the burial expenses of any deceased senator or representative.

In speaking of his bill today, Mr. Enloe said:

"My bill to regulate the expense of congressional funerals is aimed at a notorious abuse. Of course, it is the position to ridicule every effort to correct abuses which have grown gray with age. I do not believe it to be right to spend a dollar for the funeral expenses of any public official, but the custom has become so firmly intrenched that I think it is doubtful whether or not I can get this measure passed, limiting the expense in any case to $500. It now costs all the way from several thousand to bury a rich senator, to one or two thousand to bury a poor representative. I see The Post, of this city, refers to my bill as a measure to secure cheap grief. Well, I do think congressional grief does come too high. Every tear shed by congress over its deceased members has cost the taxpayers a thousand dollars. I think we could get along very well with a cheaper quality of grief. The itemized bills for such junkets would show that the official mourners are not consumed with grief while performing their functions. It is not the outside emblems of official grief that so much need regulation and abridgement as the internal provisions for celebrating the event in the regulation style of a first-class "wake." I can understand why the undertakers, the hotel keepers and other public purveyers are interested in keeping up the price of congressional grief to the present standard, but I cannot understand that the average taxpayer would object to reducing the tax on statesmen's tours. Certainly it is comparatively an insignificant matter to save a few thousand dollars where millions are wasted every year, but the principle is right, and I would like to extend it all along the line."

E. W. B.

WE HAVE HAD ENOUGH OF CHILE,

And the People Seem to Think That Instant Action Should Be Taken.

WASHINGTON, January 14.—[Special.]—President Harrison is now convinced that the country will sustain him in a war policy. His correspondence from all sections of the country within the last day or two convinces him that the people are not disposed to stand any more nonsense from Chile. They think that Chile has had an abundance of time in which to have decided the course she intended to pursue. A week or so ago President Montt claimed that he was busy organizing his cabinet, and it was impossible for him to attend to any other business. The cabinet has been organized for more than a week, and still Chile has made no move in the matter, and there is no evidence that she intends to take any steps in the near future.

The President Is Warlike.

The president said today to several prominent men that he was about convinced that Chile was trifling with this government, and he felt sure the people of this country were in no humor to be trifled with. The president is particularly gratified with the assurance he has had from southern members that the south is not only willing but anxious to sustain him in a declaration of war, which he is by no means averse to. He says that so far as his individual feelings are concerned, he thinks that we have been patient so long that patience now ceases to be a virtue. With the exception of Mr. Blaine and Secretary of War Elkins, all the members of the cabinet feel exactly the same way the president does.

Grace Is Interested.

The fine Italian hand of ex-Mayor William R. Grace, of New York, is becoming more and more visible. Colonel Thomas P. Ochiltree, who has been the guest of Colonel North, the nitrate king of Chile, who now makes his home in London, has written a western republican senator, who voted against the force bill, and is not a friend to the administration, to the effect that Colonel North and ex-Mayor Grace are working in harmony, and doing everything possible to prevent war. Grace is in constant cable communication with the nitrate king. Mr. Grace claims that Mr. Blaine will never consent to a war. Although this western senator hates the president, he says that President Harrison deserves great credit, and he fears Mr. Blaine is inspired by selfish motives, for everybody knows it is not to the advantage of Grace and North to have a war. In case of war, if Chile was captured by this country, the United States would be very apt to take charge of the nitrate beds, and the foreign owners would be wiped out.

The Dogs of War.

It is learned late tonight, on what seems to be the best authority, that President Harrison is so convinced that there must be a war that he has all the necessary documents, including a message to congress, prepared, and all that remains is to write in a date. In the meantime the navy department is woking many of its best vessels as near Chilean waters as possible. The next twenty-four hours may set the dogs of war in action.

THE DEADLOCK BROKEN.

Tom Reed's Counting Rule Followed in the Iowa Senate.

DES MOINES, Ia., January 14.—The deadlock in the senate was broken this morning, as decided at last night's republican caucus. The committee, in its report of candidates for minor officers, disregarded the wishes of Engle, independent. Lieutenant Governor Poyner, at the opening, announced a change in his position. Heretofore, he has held that the votes of a majority of the members-elect were necessary to choose permanent officers. He modified this by holding that only a majority of the quorum was necessary.

The senate then proceeded to vote for secretary. The republicans voted for Cliff and Engle for Kennedy, while the democrats refrained from voting. The lieutenant governor caused a number of their names to be recorded as present, and then announced that Cliff was elected.

The democrats protested, but were powerless. Senator Brown, republican, voted with the democrats for W. F. Conklin for assistant secretary, electing him.

LIVINGSTON TALKS

Upon the Proposition to Cut Off Grants and Subsidies.

HOLMAN CALLS UP HIS RESOLUTION

Committing the House to Rigid Economy.

WHEN THE GEORGIAN TAKES THE FLOOR

And Sounds the Keynote of Popular Disaffection With Congressional Extravagance.

WASHINGTON, January 14.—[Special.]—The house spent all of today in discussing the Holman resolution, providing for the retrenchment of government expenditures, and announcing the house as opposed to subsidies and and bounties.

The purpose of this resolution was simply to commit to retrenchment and to repeal of subsidy and bounty laws.

This congress proposes to repeal all the permanent appropriations except those upon which the credit of the government depends. In this repeal will be included the subsidies and bounties passed by the last congress, and now in existence.

Such a repealing bill is quite certain to go through the house, but the chances are it will either be killed in the senate or the white house. The particular items aimed at are the steamship subsidies and sugar bounties passed by the last congress, when Tom Reed was at the helm of legislation.

Colonel Livingston's Speech.

On this resolution today, Colonel Leonidas F. Livingston delivered himself of his "maiden" speech on the floor of the house of representatives. The doughty old alliancman had expected this opportunity, and had prepared himself for it. He had not only prepared his speech, but likewise his dress. Indeed his shoes were freshly polished, and his pantaloons had a crease in them, showing that they were fresh from his trunk, and his new black "Prince Albert" coat was buttoned close around his massive and muscular form. His face, with the exception of those chin whiskers, was shaved clean, and his bald head polished until it reflected the rays of the sun coming through the stained glass ceiling.

He Was Well Received.

There had been four long general speeches before the Georgian could get the floor, and when he did it was only for fifteen minutes, but in that time he made a speech which caught the house, and at the conclusion of which he was generously applauded. Indeed, the members crowded close around him, for it is unusual for a new member to talk so early.

But the man from Newton is neither timid nor diffident, and when he went at the republican opposition like an old stager he was warmly applauded.

Mr. Livingston's Speech.

Mr. Livingston said that, from one end of the land to the other, there existed today more destitution and distress than had ever before been known in the history of the country. It was time for congress to call a halt in the making of unnecessary and reckless appropriations. The cause of this distress was a large increase in taxation, which today was five times as much as it was in 1860. How could the producers of the country live under such a system of taxation? While the rate of taxation had been increasing, the price of products had been decreasing. Cotton had gone down from 10 cents, 1860, to 6½ cents, in the city of Augusta, Ga. What had gone down in proportion? The legislation of congress had increased taxation, and had decreased the means of paying it. Was it not time that the farmers and laborers should be heard on this floor? The resolution offered by the gentleman from Indiana not only contained sound democratic principle, but it was honest and statesmanlike. He did not see how any gentleman, whether he belonged to the first, second or third party, could do aught but support it. The people were looking with their eyes and listening with their ears for some sign of relief from this congress. Would they receive it, or would they be sent word, as they had been sent during the last twenty-five years, "work on and we will take care of the government." The passage of this resolution would encourage the workingmen of the country, and he gave it his earnest support.

Colonel Winn's Work.

Colonel Winn introduced bills today to pension the survivors of the Creek and Florida wars; also allowing the court of claims to pass upon claims of persons who lost horses and other property while in the service of the union army; also to perfect the records of the Georgia troops in the union army.

Josiah G. Harris was appointed postmaster at Barnesville today.

THE DEFICIT INCREASES

From $100,000 to $226,000 and Is Still Growing.

WILMINGTON, N. C., January 14.—[Special.] In reference to the wrecked First National bank the outlook for the depositors and the stockholders is more discouraging than it was at first, as it now transpires that instead of a deficiency of something over one hundred thousand dollars, there is in reality a shortage of $226,000. Since the examination began certificates of deposit have turned up for which no equivalent in money appears. The interest, however, was regularly paid on some, if not all of these certificates, but this has been one of the important items which has contributed to the increase of the liabilities. There is no news of the absconding cashier, H. M. Bowden.

THE NEGRO WAS KILLED.

The Laurens Fires Traced to a Negro, Who Was Killed.

GREENVILLE, S. C., January 14.—[Special.] The town of Laurens, S. C., has suffered severely from losses by fire for several weeks past, both in its business and residence portions. The circumstances were such as to cause the belief that some of them were incendiary. About a week ago, Mrs. Richardson's boarding house was discovered on fire, but was extinguished before any damage was done. Suspicion fell on a negro, named Laurens Thompson, and a close watch has been kept on him since. About 12 o'clock last night Oswald Richardson, a young man, whose mother keeps the house, was watching Thompson, when he saw him enter the cellar, where he remained a short while. He then came back to the door, and listened a few moments before he walked out. As he did so he was commanded to halt by Mr. Richardson. He immediately ran, but was brought down by a load of buckshot from a gun in the hands of Mr. Richardson. A second shot killed him dead in his tracks. After the shooting, several policemen and citizens visited the cellar in which the negro was discovered, where they found a partially filled bottle with kerosene oil, and on the sills and side of the walls the oil had been scattered with the evident intention of setting it afire again. This was near the same part of the building that was fired last week.

TWO CARDINALS DEAD.

Cardinal Manning and Cardinal Simeoni Both Pass Away.

LONDON, January 14.—Cardinal Manning is dead.

The cardinal continued to grow weaker and weaker during the night, until finally his prostration became complete. He was able, however, to join in the prayers which were being offered at his bedside. His eminence continued these supplications for divine mercy until half-past 7 o'clock, when he became unconscious. His death was calm, and he passed away evidently without pain. Telegrams of regret from all parts of the world are being received.

The Death of Cardinal Simeoni.

ROME, January 14.—Cardinal Simeoni, formerly papal secretary of state and prefect general of the propaganda, died today. His death was due to an attack of influenza, from which he had been suffering for several days.

Geovoni Simeoni was born at Palino, in the diocese of Palestrina, July 23, 1816, and, having been ordained priest, he was, on account of his solid learning, employed in various offices of considerable importance. Having been created cardinal in 1875, he remained in the nunciature at Madrid in the quality pronuncio, and, on the death of Cardinal Antonelli, in 1876, he was appointed secretary of state to Pius IX., an office which he retained until the death of that pontiff. He was succeeded, as secretary of state, by Cardinal Franchi, in March, 1878, when Pope Leo XIII appointed Cardinal Simeoni prefect of the propaganda.

Cardinal Serafino Vannutelli, papal secretary of memorials, will succeed Cardinal Simeoni as prefect general of the propaganda.

Other Deaths.

General Robert Ransom died at New Berne, N. C., yesterday morning. He was a younger brother of Senator M. W. Ransom, and major general of cavalry in the confederate army. He graduated at West Point in 1850. He distinguished himself in many battles, especially at Mary's Heights, Fredericksburg. He was of late years assistant engineer on the government works for the deepening of water courses in eastern Carolina.

Mrs. J. A. Willbanks, an esteemed lady of Athens, Ga., after a lingering illness, died Tuesday night, and was buried yesterday.

Judge Manson Glass, the father of Mrs. D. H. Dougherty, of Atlanta, died at his home in Newton county January 13th at 6:10 o'clock a. m.

B. Neider, a Birmingham tailor, was found dead in his room in Anniston, Ala., at the Leach house. He arrived there Wednesday night and was assigned a room at once, complaining at the time of being sick.

Dr. D. B. Verdel, one of the oldest and most prominent physicians of Elbert county, died two days ago in Coffee county, and his remains have been taken to Elberton to be interred at Bethlehem church. Dr. Verdel had a daughter teaching in Coffee county. He received a telegram announcing that she was very ill. He was in bad health himself, but left immediately for the bedside of his daughter. The fatigue of the trip overcame him and he died soon after his arrival. He was seventy years old and has been a very successful practitioner of medicine in Elbert county for nearly fifty years. His daughter is rapidly recovering.

One of the most conspicuous characters in Tennessee died at Jackson, Tenn., yesterday, in the person of Colonel Robert L. Chester. Colonel Chester was born ninety-eight years ago in Carlisle, Pa., but had lived in Tennessee most of his life. In early life he was a merchant at Carthage. He was the oldest Mason in the United States, having joined the order in 1818. He was a volunteer in the war of 1812, and was quartermaster under General Jackson at the battle of New Orleans. He was elected messenger to carry Tennessee's electoral vote to Washington in 1884.

The funeral services of Major R. F. Lawton, in Macon, were largely attended yesterday morning, from the residence of the deceased on College street, in that city. The great sorrow manifested by all showed the great affection and esteem in which he was held. The elegant casket containing the body was covered with many beautiful flowers, the offerings of love and friendship. Rev. Dr. E. W. Warren officiated in a very solemn and impressive manner. His remarks were very beautiful and were based chiefly on a prayer the deceased had written on the fly leaf of his Bible September 11th, when he was in Europe. The singing was exquisitely rendered by the choir of the First Baptist church, composed of Mrs. Stallings, Mrs. Findley, Messrs. Everett and McCardel. The pallbearers were J. W. Cabaniss, Howard M. Smith, R. H. Plant, J. T. Derry, E. D. Huguenin, Cooper Winn, B. M. Zettler and T. D. Tinsley. A long line of carriages followed the remains to the grave.

The stock is valued at $15,000, balance in notes and accounts. Assets $20,000. Lucius Fryerson made a deed of trust of his real estate and bonds to secure debts amounting to $50,000. His assets are about forty thousand dollars.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., January 14.—A. Horseberg has failed, with liabilities at $150,000 and assets of $125,000.

The Virginia Debt Settlement.

RICHMOND, Va., January 14.—[Special.]—The message of Governor McKinney, transmitting to the general assembly the report of the state commissioners, which, in conjunction with the Olcott committee, reached a basis of settlement of the Virginia debt, was laid before the general assembly today. The two papers will be referred to a special joint committee, composed of the senate and the house finance committees, the lieutenant governor and the speaker of the house, with instructions to report by bill or otherwise. No serious opposition to the terms of the settlement is anticipated.

Stricken with Paralysis.

BOSTON, Ga., January 14.—[Special.]—Mr. W. J. Wilson, an old and highly respected citizen of Boston, and supervisor of this division of the Savannah, Florida and Western railway, was stricken with paralysis on Saturday last. He has completely lost the use of his entire right side. His physicians entertain slight hope of his recovery.

Frozen to Death.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., January 14.—[Special.]—John W. Parhan, colored, went to Martins yesterday, from Dresden, to get a jug of whisky. He got it, and started back. He stopped several times to test the jug's contents, and this morning he was found frozen to death, lying on his face, in the snow.

PRINCE GEORGE

Will Succeed His Dead Brother Albert Victor as Heir to the Throne

AND MAY MARRY THE BRIDE-ELECT.

The Prince of Wales Announces the Death of His Son.

WHILE THE GOSSIPS OF THE REALM

Want the Coming Man to Take the Bride as Well as the Throne of His Dead Brother.

LONDON, January 14.—The duke of Clarence, heir to the throne of England, is dead.

This makes the second son of the prince of Wales, Prince George, the heir.

Prince George's health is not very good at present. As he is the only remaining son of the prince of Wales, his death

PRINCE GEORGE OF WALES,
Who Succeeds Albert Victor as Heir-Apparent

would devolve the succession upon his oldest daughter, the duchess of Fife.

And thus, for the first time in centuries, an English subject would be entitled to the place of prince consort, and the reign of woman over the British empire, begun in 1837, would be continued indefinitely.

Albert Victor was to have married his cousin, Princess Mary, of Teck, on the 27th of February. Already a movement has been started, insisting that Prince George should take his brother's place at the nuptial altar, as well as upon the throne.

The Story of Albert Victor's Death.

Lord Mayor Evans this morning received the following dispatch from Sandringham:

Our beloved son passed away at 8 o'clock today.
ALBERT EDWARD.

On receipt of the news the lord mayor at once gave orders to have the great bell in St. Paul's cathedral tolled and also sent the following message to the prince of Wales:

We are profoundly moved by the sad news and have communicated it to our fellow citizens. We tender our deep and respectful sympathy with your royal highness in this great sorrow and national calamity.

What the Bell Meant.

When the solemn tolling of the great bells in St. Paul's cathedral was heard this morning they conveyed to every one within hearing of their deep-mouthed booming the fact that the duke of Clarence and Avondale had passed away. The bells in St. Paul's are never tolled save on the occasion of the death of the heir to the throne, and, therefore, no further information was necessary for the people of London to make them aware that, after a gallant struggle, the duke had finally succumbed.

The Flag at Half-Mast.

Up to noon no official bulletin of the death of the duke had been issued at Sandringham hall, but soon after 10 o'clock the blinds of the house were drawn, and the flag on the church was placed at half-mast, and the church bell began tolling.

These facts gave to the people waiting about the gates the first information that all was over. From an early hour this morning reinforcements of police were detailed to duty about Sandringham hall, and they prevented any access to the house. As the day progressed, the crowd in the vicinity of Marlborough house increased. The mall was at times completely blockaded with carriages conveying the most noted people of the kingdom. Lord Salisbury, prime minister, and Lady Salisbury, and nearly the entire diplomatic corps, were among the callers.

At 1 o'clock this afternoon the following dispatch was received from Sandringham:

After a marked improvement during the early part of the night, the strength of the duke of Clarence and Avondale suddenly failed. About 2 o'clock he began gradually sinking, and death occurred at 9:15 o'clock a. m.

This dispatch was signed by the three physicians who have been in attendance upon his royal highness. Bells in Westminster abbey tolled from 12 o'clock until 1 o'clock.

The New Crown Prince.

Prince George of Wales becomes heir of he prince of Wales, and, therefore, heir presumptive to the throne. He was born June 3, 1865. He soon displayed a predilection for naval affairs, and after serving in minor capacities, was appointed in March, 1890, to the command of the new gunboat Thrush, and while on this vessel he was attached to the British North American squadron. In August, 1891, he was promoted to the rank of commander in her majesty's fleet.

Preparing for the Burial.

Messages of sympathy and condolence have been received by the queen from rulers of all the civilized countries of the world. The prince of Wales wanted the burial to be at Sandringham, but the queen decided on Windsor.

The queen has also ordered that the court go into full mourning for three months, and canceled all "drawing rooms" and state levees. She has announced that the funeral of the duke would be a state function, and that it would be held in St. George's chapel, Windsor palace. It was in this chapel that the marriage of the duke to Princess Victoria Mary was to have taken place February 27th next.

George May Marry His Brother's Affianced

The gossip concerning the succession which was freely indulged in during the illness of the duke, has been greatly increased by his death. It is generally agreed that haste will now be made in bringing about the marriage of Prince George, to remove the possibility of the Fife succession.

On July 29, 1889, Alexander William George Duff, who was then earl of Fife, but who was subsequently created duke of Fife, married Princess Louise Victoria Alexander Dagmar, eldest daughter of the prince and princess of Wales. Of this marriage was born on May 17, 1891, a daughter who was christened Alexandria Victoria Alberta Edwina Louisa Duff. As the succession now stands, in event of the death of the prince of Wales and Prince George, the throne of England would fall to the wife of the duke of Fife, and after her death to Lady Alexandria Duff, her daughter, who is not yet a year old.

THE WORLD IS IN ITS GRIP.—From New York Press.

This possibility is not viewed with equanimity by members of the nobility, who believe that heirs to the throne should be of the full blood royal. It is hinted very broadly that a marriage between Prince George and Princess Victoria Mary of Teck will be arranged.

The newspaper, Modern Society, however, today asserts that a marriage has already been arranged between Prince George and a daughter of Prince and Princess Christian, who is his cousin.

Prince George Is Popular.

It may here be stated that Prince George is far more popular than his deceased brother was among all classes of British society.

The St. James Gazette, in an article which is believed to reflect the general felling, says:

It would be sycophancy to say that the hapless prince was regarded with enthusiastic devotion or intense personal regard by a majority of those whom he might have ruled. We have the best of reason to believe that in the death of the duke of Clarence and Avondale we have lost a promising young prince, whose untimely taking off would claim our meed of sorrow even without the exceptional circumstances of the occasion. But it is the circumstance of the approaching marriage wherein a special pathos lies.

The death of the duke can hardly make a serious difference in the political or dynastic situation Prince George of Wales steps into the place of heir. If the tragic event has any lesson it is that it is a duty that princes owe to their subjects, from their position, to take a

THE DUCHESS OF FIFE,
The Eldest Daughter of the Prince of Wales.

due and seasonable measure to make the succession secure.

Prince George Not an Englishman.

The death of the duke of Clarence, heir presumptive to the throne of England, brings prominently before the world the fact that the future king, should Prince George ever sit on the throne, will be only one-fourth an Englishman. The prince of Wales is by blood only half an Englishman, his father, the prince consort, having been a foreigner who never lost the Hanoverian accent. The prince of Wales married the Princess Alexandra of Denmark, daughter of Christian IX, the reigning king of that country. Prince George Frederick Ernest Albert, the second son of that marriage, now, by the death of his elder brother, heir presumptive to the throne of England, is half Dane, one-fourth German and one-fourth Englishman. Indeed, he is not quite one-fourth an Englishman by blood, for his grandmother, Queen Victoria, was not wholly of English descent. Really, if the matter be traced back a little it will be found that Prince George is little more than one-eighth an Englishman. This is the complexion of monarchy.

So greatly does foreign blood predominate in the veins of the young heir presumptive that, in the event of his accession to the throne, English royalty may be said to undergo a Danish and Teutonic invasion. As a curious coincidence the emperor of the Germans is in a large degree an Englishman, being in fact the grandson of Queen Victoria. Verily it begins to appear like a new brotherhood of the Teutonic division of the Aryan race.

The following inquiry is one which has suggested itself to a good many minds:

EDITOR CONSTITUTION—Since the death of the Duke of Clarance and Avondale, the next son of the Prince of Wales becomes the heir presumptive of the throne of England. Now, suppose the Prince of Wales should die before his mother, Queen Victoria. Would Prince George still be the heir presumptive, or would the line of succession revert to the next oldest child of Queen Victoria, who I believe, is the Duke of Edinburg?

This question was discussed today by a party of gentlemen, and some claimed that, if the prince of Wales died before his mother, the queen, the duke of Edinburg would become the successor to the throne, instead of the prince of Wale's eldest son. Others claim that the descent is lineal, not collateral, and that the prince of Wales's brothers were entirely out of the line of succession, as long as the prince had any children of his own living, even though he were to die before his mother.

To carry the inquiry further, suppose Prince George were now to die, then who would be the heir presumptive, he being the only living son of the prince of Wales? Would it be his next child, who married the duke of Fife, or would her being a woman cause the succession to revert to the prince of Wales's brother? INQUIRER.

The English law of primogeniture vests the inheritance in the eldest son and his issue. In the inheritance of land, primogeniture did not apply to women, but, the crown being indivisible, it became necessary, in the succession to the throne, to apply the rule to females as well as to males.

Thus, if the prince of Wales should die, his oldest living son would stand in his place, heir apparent to the throne.

The question, as to the succession of the duchess of Fife in the event of the death of Prince George, is answered by the succession of Queen Victoria to her uncle, William IV. Her father, the duke of Kent, was heir apparent, and at his death his daughter acquired his title to the succession. It will be remembered that George III had nine sons and six daughters. Of these George IV and William IV sat on the throne. The duke of Kent came next in order, but he was dead when William IV died, and his daughter reigned in his stead.

THE RAIN CEASED

And a Cold Wave Closely Followed.

The Mails Delayed Several Hours.

GREAT DAMAGE TO THE RAILROADS.

Hundreds of Trains Indefinitely Suspended--Miles of Track Under Water--Heavy Farm Damages.

The rainstorm has been succeeded by a cold wave, but the swollen streams of the southern states are still doing great damage to property along their line.

Early yesterday morning the rain ceased, and immediately the mercury began to descend towards zero.

Towards noon the cold wave which started in the northwast, after striking Texas, following the trend of the rain storm, struck Atlanta.

It was only a few hours before its chilling influences were uncomfortably perceptable.

The indications at the weather bureau last night were that the mercury will be within 20 degrees of zero this morning.

But today the dismal, gloomy spell of the last few days will be succeeded by bright sunshine.

Towards night the weather will begin to grow milder and tomorrow will be a pleasanter day, at least such were the indications last night.

Railroad Obstruction.

The high waters have demoralized the railroad schedules in a number of places.

The Marietta and North Georgia road is under water in several places, and the track is damaged considerably. All trains on the road were abandoned yesterday. Mr. King, of the railway mail service, yesterday wired Receiver Glover asking that a train be put on between Canton and Knoxville so that the local mail along the line could get an outlet over the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia. A man was sent from the railway mail service department in Atlanta to Knoxville with instructions to reach the mail from the local points along the Marietta and North Georgia, if at all possible, in order to transfer it to the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia at Knoxville.

The Rome railroad from Rome to Kingston is reported to have been washed up for several hundred yards in different places.

No trains are running.

The East and West railroad, running from Cedartown to Pell City, Ala., intersecting the Georgia Pacific and Talladega and Coosa Valley roads, is under water in eight different places from seven to ten feet. All trains have been indefinitely suspended.

The damage will amount to thousands of dollars, and the heavy business of the road, principally building material, coal and iron, will be blocked for several days

The Georgia Pacific road is broken at Tallapoosa, and trains between here and Birmingham were abandoned yesterday.

The damage, however, is not thought to be very great, and if the water recedes the probability is the road can be repaired and operation of trains on regular schedule resumed in a day or two.

The Atlanta and West Point is broken at West Point, and at Mount Meigs, Ala.

The most serious trouble is at West Point. All trains on that road, beyond West Point, were indefinitely suspended yesterday.

The Atlanta and West Point is under water one and one-half miles at West Point, and something over two miles at Cowles station, thirty miles above Montgomery. If the freeze don't interfere and the waters recede reasonably fast, the company hopes to be making through trips in a day or two, but, of course, it is impossible to estimate the extent of the damage at present. A construction train will be placed on the road at Chehaw today and work westward, and regular trains will continue to run between here and West Point.

Several spans of track on the Mobile and Montgomery division of the Louisville and Nashville between Mobile and Montgomery, are washed up at Brewton, Ala. An order was issued yesterday for the indefinite suspension of all trains on that division. The damage is thought to be great, and it will probably take several days to repair the road.

The Alabama Midland road running from Montgomery, Ala., to Bainbridge, Ga., is said to have suffered greater injury than any other railroad property in the range of the terrible storm. Business is entirely suspended all over the system, and will probably not be resumed for a week. The loss is estimated to be away up in the thousands of dollars.

Owing to the high water near Calhoun, some of the regular trains on the Western and Atlantic were suspended last night, but all trains will be put on regular trips this morning.

Mr. King, of the railway mail service, yesterday received advices from Birmingham and Chattanooga that the Alabama Great Southern was all right, and that all trains were running within twenty-five to forty minutes of schedule time.

Considerable trouble is reported from Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi.

The Delayed Mails.

No mail can be reached between LaGrange and Montgomery. There is no delay in the Charleston and Augusta routes. All mails from New Orleans and the west are sent from Birmingham to Chattanooga. This transfer of routes makes a delay of from twelve to twenty-four hours in reaching Atlanta.

Mr. King, of the railway mail service, was asked last night about the outlook for the re-establishment of regular schedules on the broken mail routes.

"I can't say definitely," he answered, "as we cannot get accurate information regarding the extent of the railroad damages. There will be little delay on our part, for we can transfer the mail from one train or one road to another in a few minutes. I think, however, that in forty-eight hours the trains will all be in operation, or at least, those passing through isolated territory, so that no other outlet is available. You see there are only a few places, where if one railroad fails us we cannot reach another. Of course, there are some places where small local mails can't be reached for several days, but special efforts will be made to get them at the earliest possible moment."

Farm Property Damages.

Heavy damages to farm property along the large streams in the storm territory are reported. But no accurate estimate of the amounts can be reached until the high waters recede. Alabama farmers have probably suffered more than any others, although Texas and Mississippi have sustained heavy losses.

ROME MAY BE CUT OFF AGAIN.

The Water Has Been Rising Steadily All Day Long.

ROME, Ga., January 14.—[Special.]—Today has been a fete day in Rome. Everybody was in for fun and frolic. The ceaseless grind of business has lulled for a little while, and pleasure lovers are making the most of it. Great crowds of laughter-loving citizens have flocked all the day long to the water's edge, while the jolliest of parties have floated up and down the streets of Rome in rafts of various kinds.

When morning broke in Rome a magnificent water scape greeted the observer's eye. It did not make any difference which direction the eyes were turned, for all around great fields along the banks of the Etowah, the Oostanaula and the Coosa were covered with water, and there was some water in the corporate limits. For instance, that section between the Rome railroad and the Etowah, a portion of First avenue, Second avenue, formerly Howard street, down to Captain Ramey's corner, the fourth ward, formerly DeSoto, and Broad street from the bridge to a little beyond the Masonic temple, except a part of the center of the street known as Long Island, was flooded by daylight, and the waters were still rising and adding to the beauty of the scene the summit of Alto and the surrounding mountains were snow-capped. Many merchants worked most of the night moving their goods to higher quarters. Thousands of bales of cotton were being drayed to the hills and piled many deep in front of the Methodist church, the First Baptist church and the Central hotel, but all the merchants got their goods well up, and there was no surprise or alarm caused.

The Turbulent Etowah.

The Etowah was the turbulent stream, and almost dammed the flow of the Oostanaula, and the current down the track of the Rome railroad was very strong. At 6 o'clock this morning the Oostanaula registered 33.4 feet above low-water mark, and was rising nearly three inches per hour. At 10 a. m. the waters were rising at the rate of two inches, and were just beginning to creep into Rounsaville & Brocton's warehouse. In the warehouse were several hundred bales of cotton that had not been removed, and they piled it on the roof. At noon the Etowah was rising about two and a half inches per hour, and was three and a half deep in the waterworks yard, and the well was filled. The Oostanaula at the same time registered nearly thirty-five feet above low water, and was about three feet higher than the flood of 1886.

The Rivers Keep Rising.

All the afternoon the rivers kept rising at about two inches per hour, and it is thought they will continue until some time tomorrow. The greatest freshet of Rome was in 1886, where the register showed 40.3 feet above low water, and perhaps above thirty-seven feet will mark the highest limit of this one.

The fourth ward presented some novel scenes. In many of the stores the water almost reached the second floor, and the little one story buildings' roofs above alone stuck out. Chickens in one or two places were roosting on the houses. In a little cottage towards the northern limit of the fourth ward, only a small plat of ground could be seen, water surrounding it ten feet deep in some places and women and children were preparing to move. On the grass stood two old oxen, and the nearest land was several hundred yards off.

The electric light plant is under water, so is the waterworks.

One Sad Scene.

There was one very sad scene. Marion, the little infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack King, died yesterday and the burial took place today. Services were held at the house, on Second avenue. Myrtle Hill cemetery was across the Etowah, and the little casket and the friends and the family were carried in boats across the waters.

Business will hardly be resumed before next week. Employers and employes are enjoying the holidays walking, boating, hunting rabbits or sitting around the fireside. Telegrams from above say the rivers are falling.

Trains on the Rome railroad ceased running yesterday at 7 a. m. The Richmond and Danville from Chattanooga reached the city at noon, and then backed to Chattanooga. A washout is reported on the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia, between North and East Rome. Only one telegraphic wire leads out of the city and that is a very frail wire.

The Damage Around Ellijay.

ELLIJAY, Ga., January 14.—[Special.]—We have had no railroad mail for two days at this place on account of the damage done to the Marietta and Georgia and Knoxville Southern railroads by the recent heavy rains. The bridge at this place is damaged, and several bridges and trestles along the line are said to be damaged.

The Savannah River Rising.

AUGUSTA, Ga., January 14.—[Special.]—The Savannah river is up to twenty-seven feet eight inches at 11 o'clock tonight, and is rising two inches an hour. It commenced on the second rise at midnight last night, and the water has been steadily coming up all day. It commenced raining here again tonight, and there has been quite a heavy downpour. There is no alarm, and the people do not think there will be a freshet, even though the river is away up tonight.

Chattanooga in Danger.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., January 14.—[Special.]—The river is twenty-eight feet, and rising one-half inch an hour. The danger line is thirty-three feet, and it looks like the water will soon be in the city.

The Oconee Is Over Its Banks.

ATHENS, Ga., January 14.—[Special.]—The Oconee is up and booming. Princeton factory was shut down on account of high water yesterday.

DID HE MURDER FUDGE?

A Wounded Negro Who Is Suspected Of Having Committed a Crime.

VIENNA, Ga., January 14.—[Special.]—Ben Whitehead, the negro whose leg was amputated last week, is doing well. This is the negro who was shot while splitting rails on Mr. Morgan's place. When informed by the latter that he was suspected of having murdered Mr. Joe Fudge, at Elko, he became so violent that he had to be shot in self-defense, while he was endeavoring to brain Mr. Morgan with an ax. The negro's actions still indicate that while he may not be the murderer of Mr. Fudge, he is an outlaw and guilty of some crime.

Mr. Howell's Presence Requested.

ATHENS, Ga., January 14.—[Special.]—Mr. W. H. Howell, president of the Athens Waterworks Company, who lives in Providence, R. I., has been requested by the council to be present next Monday at a council meeting here, at which decisive steps will be taken. The almost universal opinion favors the erection of a new system of works by the city.

GENERAL GEORGIA BRIEFS.

Ex-Representative W. D. Wells has been quite sick for the past few days, but is now rapidly recovering.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Citizens' bank, of Valdosta, yesterday the following board was unanimously elected: J. F. Lewis, president; W. H. Briggs, vice president; T. G. Crawford, T. S. McKey, T. B. Converse, W. H. Griffin, B. F. Whittington, B. P. Jones, J. G. Stevens, directors.

Mr. Steve White, a prominent confectionery and grocery merchant of Elberton, has been closed by the sheriff. Overstock and poor sales were the causes of his suspension.

Hon. W. H. Mattox, of Heardmont, Elbert county, is now one of the lessees of state convicts. He has about thirty-five female convicts on his large farm on the Savannah river.

The election for councilmen in Smithville resulted: D. G. Arera, C. A. Rhodes, E. A. Kearsay, J. L. Paul and J. F. Johnson.

MONEY AT STAKE.

Captain Blun Sued for $100,000 Worth of Property.

THE DECLINE IN THE COTTON MARKET.

The Causes Which Led to It—The Note of a Well-Known Philadelphia Firm Goes to Protest.

SAVANNAH, Ga., January 14.—[Special.]—A case of great interest is expected to come up in the superior court tomorrow. It is the suit of Mr. Wayne, a son of the late General H. C. Wayne, and other parties against Captain Henry Blun. Property valued at $100,000 is involved in the decision.

In 1883 Captain Blun bought from the Wayne heirs a tract of land consisting of 100 acres. The parties now suing claim that Captain Blun was at that time agent for the late Dr. Buyler, one of the heirs, and bought the land direct from the doctor and the other heirs. They allege that he bought it at less than he ought to have paid for it. They also claim that the land is now worth $100,000, and that Captain Blun foresaw a boom in lands around Savannah, but failed to notify them of it, which, as their agent, he should have done.

On these grounds they seek to recover the land, which is still in the possession of Captain Blun. The captain is represanted by George A. Mercer, and the plaintiffs by Hon. Pope Barrow and other lawyers. It is claimed that the heirs were very desirous to sell at the time, and that a comparison of the price paid for their land with that at which other land was sold at the time, shows that they received the full market value.

The Fall in Cotton.

At noon today cotton had gone off four points, and the market was quite easy. This was a disappointment to those who had hoped for another rapid advance, like that of yesterday.

"I do not see any foundation for the expectation that there is to be a great falling off in receipts at once and a proportionate rise in prices," said a prominent cotton man this morning.

"It does not look reasonable to expect a great slump in receipts after they have kept up so large and so steady for such a long time. I believe the falling off will be gradual, and that those who expect to see the market change rapidly for the better will be disappointed. Relief will come slowly."

The decline this morning, it is thought, was caused by depression in England over the death of the prince. Sometimes these things affect the market all over the world.

"A rise in cotton would be a good thing at this time, would it not?" was asked several factors. Their answers were about as follows:

"It would work well for warehousemen and dealers who hold cotton, but I doubt if it would do any great good. It would encourage planters to put in big crops and pitch in for a heavy cotton acreage. The experience of this year shows that such a thing would be disastrous."

A Note Goes to Protest.

Some surprise was caused here by the announcement that a note of Joseph H. Coates & Co., of Philadelphia, had gone to protest. The firm has a branch in Savannah, which made this an important point to be watched by the creditors of the failing firm. A lawyer here received a telegram instructing them to protect the claim of the Philadelphia National bank for $25,000. They were delayed in executing the papers because of the difficulty in obtaining a fifty-thousand-dollar bond. This morning, however, the bond was executed, and summons of garnishments were served on all the leading cotton firms and warehouses in the city.

Robertson Fired Upon.

Rev. J. D. Robertson is in trouble again. He is the white man, it will be remembered, who was driven out of Bluffton some months ago. He subsequently returned, and a few nights ago was treated to a lively serenade, his house being riddled with bullets and his overcoat, which was hanging near a window, being pierced by a dozen shots. At least that is the story Robertson, who has gone to Beaufort, tells. It is stated that Robertson fired back and wounded one of the attacking party. Robertson is thoroughly obnoxious to the white people of Bluffton.

A Child Burned to Death.

GREENVILLE, S. C., January 14.—[Special.]—A little six-year-old girl was fatally burned on Monday morning last in Fairview township, on the place of W. P. Adams. She was the daughter of a tenant named Ford Fowler. She stated before her death that her clothing was set on fire by a younger brother. A gentleman passing discovered the child in flames, and tore the burning clothes from her, severely burning himself in doing so. She lingered about eight hours before death relieved her sufferings.

Will Test It in the Courts.

ATHENS, Ga., January 14.—[Special.]—The city of Athens will, it is said, test in the courts the question whether or not the city is entitled from the Richmond and Danville road to such rates on western freights as are given to Atlanta. This is a portion of the contract between the city and the road, and will be explained in the courts.

Cock Fighting in South Carolina.

GREENVILLE, S. C., January 14—[Special.]—A big cocking main between cocks from this city and Augusta, Ga., began here today. Two mains are to be fought. The first for $500 on the main, and $50 on each fight, each side to show twenty-one cocks. The second for $250 on the main and $25 on each fight, each side to show eleven cocks. The fights will last four days.

The Erring Couple Found.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., January 14.—[Special.]—A few days since a couple secured board at a Third street house, giving their names as "George W. Sikes and wife." Today Mr. Hatton, of Waukegan, Ill., came here with officers in search of his daughter. Sikes deserted his wife and children in Chicago to elope with the girl. Quite a scene ensued when the couple were confronted. Both agreed to go home and did go this morning.

Burglars Are Abroad.

ANNISTON, Ala., January 14.—[Special.]—The burglars who have infested Anniston for several months are now paying their respects to the surrounding villages. Last night a store at Alpine was robbed and the safe blown open, and the depot at Barclay burglarized. A small store at Morrisville and one at Peaceburg were visited the night before.

AUGUSTA, Ga., January 14.—[Special.]—The Augusta glasswork' directors today agreed to issue $25,000 preferred stock, the money raised to be used in increasing and enlarging the business of the company.

Their Sympathy Expressed.—The Good Templars of Atlanta held an informal meeting yesterday to express their sympathy for their chief of Juvenile Templars, J. J. Keith, of Louisville, Ga., who accidentally killed his son, Norman, while out hunting, the day before. A telegram was sent expressing deep sympathy for those so sadly bereaved.

JAMES H. MORRISON, managing editor of The Knoxville Tribune, and Mr. Cal W. McClung, of Knoxville, one of the wealthiest and most influential young men in East Tennessee, are in the city on business.

THE GOVERNOR IN DAWSON.

Governor Northen and Commissioner Bradwell on a Visit.

DAWSON, Ga., January 14.—[Special.]—Governor Northen and Commissioner Bradwell were met at Smithville by a representative body of our city and escorted with due honors to the gates. The rain was falling in torrents, but the hearty reception given them was an exemplification of Dawson's unbounded hospitality, and they were transported directly in carriages to the office of the board of education, where the officials and people alike mingled in democratic familiarity. Visits were made Thursday morning to the public schools and other places of interest. An eager throng listened to the address in advocacy of public education, and interest has been aroused throughout the county. The Wilson house was gayly lighted, and from 8:20 to 10:30 o'clock the gentlemen mingled with the brave men and fair women of our town, and an elegant collation was served, and our honored guests departed on the midnight train for the capital.

THE REFORMERS ARE MAD.

After Electing Their Council It Went Back on Them.

CHARLESTON, S. C., January 14.—[Special.] The air of Charleston is not filled with music today, at least not reform music. The reformers for revenue are at present jumping on Elmore Martin, the new chief of police, whom they accuse of selling out to the regulars. The elections last night were not concluded till near midnight. At the close the hall of the city council was filled with the debris of the reform candidates. The largest and most lucrative offices fell into the hands of the present incumbents, all regulars, the reformers only getting the chief of police and the tidal drain keeper. The collapse of the caucus plan of the reformers is attributed to the defection of Alderman Elmore Martin, who is charged with accepting the position of chief of police, after announcing during the campaign that he was not a candidate for any office, and after actually declining the reform nomination for the mayoralty.

Stolen Money Recovered.

STAUNTON, Va., January 14.—Several days ago an express package sent from the treasury department, Washington, to the National Valley bank, at Staunton, containing $840 in bank notes, was receipted for by the express agent here. When he reached his office the package was missing. Today Express Driver Eugene Keys was arrested, and his house was searched and $640 of the money was found.

On Trial for Murder.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., January 14.—[Special.]—Martha Womack, a young negress, is on trial in the circuit court for the murder of her lover. She found him distributing his affections promiscuously among the other girls, and on one occasion when she found him walking on a side street with another girl, she relieved the monotony of a Chattanooga Sabbath day by shooting him, from which he died.

Coates & Co. Gone.

PHILADELPHIA, January 14.—The embarrassed cotton and wool commission firm of Joseph H. Coates & Co., 116 Chestnut street, in this city, made an assignment this afternoon to Horace H. Fritz. The assignment is made by Joseph H. Coates, Harrison B. Scheil and John Walter Gummey, individually and as the firm of Coates & Co.

The Alabama Rivers Raging.

MOBILE, Ala., January 14.—[Special.]—The Alabama and Tombigbee rivers are on the rampage, having risen with unprecedented rapidity during the last forty eight hours. The Alabama is up forty feet above low water at Selma, and the Coosa is up fifty feet at Wetumpka, and the Tombigbee and Warrior rivers are very high.

FROM OHIO.

A Party of Thirty from the Buckeye State to Tour Through the Tropics.

A party of thirty from Ohio arrived in Atlanta yesterday morning over the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia road in a special car.

They are "doing the south," and will visit all the important points before returning home.

Their idea is to see, and form their own impressions of the most notable places in the southland.

The party left last night via the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia for Florida, where there will be a temporary dispersal. Some will visit different parts of that state, while others will proceed to Havana.

The trip was arranged and is being managed by Mr. D. Joy Collier, of the "Big Four Route."

The members of the party are: Hon. and Mrs. T. Barnham, Mrs. Camille Bogie, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Collyer, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Kilfoyl, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Libby, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Morgan, E. D. Newkirk, Miss Newkirk, Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Stapleton, D. A. Upson, L. M. Upson, Miss Lillian Vischer, J. C. Wilmot and John Rock, of Cleveland; Mrs. Violetta Barrett, of Wooster; Mr. and Mrs. Neff and J. T. Hutchinson, of Worcester; Colonel T. J. Charlton, of Plainfield, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Jackson, of Clyde, and Mrs. L. French, of Jacksonville, Fla.

A beautiful little souvenir card, illustrated and handsomely printed, was given them by the railroad, containing a full list of those in the party.

SHE MADE A WILL.

Last Will and Testament of Mrs. M. A. Dougherty on File

IN ORDINARY CALHOUN'S OFFICE.

Her Property Goes to Her Four Grandchildren—The National Hotel to Mrs. Flynn.

Mrs. M. A. Dougherty did make a will, reports to the contrary notwithstanding.

That will was placed on file in Ordinary Calhoun's office yesterday morning.

And it will be recorded today.

This last testament of Mrs. Dougherty is an important document, as it directs the disposition of nearly a million dollars' worth of property.

The bequests are very simple, and occupy but a few pages of parchment.

The will was drawn up by Mrs. Dougherty's attorney just a few weeks before her death.

Mrs. Dougherty has but one child, Mrs. John H. Flynn, of this city.

By the will none of the property goes to Mrs. Flynn.

All of the estate of Mrs. Dougherty, mentioned in the will, goes to Mrs. Flynn's four children.

By a deed of gift the National hotel building and site go to Mrs Flynn.

This is valued at over $300,000, and is one of he most centrally located pieces of property in the city.

The remainder of the estate is equally divided among the four grandchildren.

The eldest of these is Mrs. Mary O'Brien, who resides at Wilmington, Del. She is the wife of Dr. O'Brien, of that city.

Mr. Tom Flynn, the only son of Mrs. Flynn, is now traveling in Europe. He married a niece of Mr. John Loyd, of this city.

Of the other two sisters, Miss Katie, the eldest, is in a convent at Wilmington, Del.

The other, Miss Nellie Flynn, a charming young lady, just out of school, resides with her mother in this city.

There are no bequests to charitable institutions, or to any church. The simple disposition of the large estate as told above is made.

The estate is estimated at from three-quarters of a million to one million dollars. It consists of several valuable pieces of real estate located in Atlanta.

The paper will be recorded in the ordinary's office today and probated in solemn form.

BACCILLI IN BLOOD.

Recent experiments as read before the last Congress of Surgeons at Berlin, leave no doubt that the true way to CLEAR THE SYSTEM OF MICROBI is through the pores of the skin. It has been found that a remedy which kills the Microbi will also destroy the life of the patient; but it has also been found that the Microbi can be forced out through the skin, and it is in this way that S.S.S. relieves the system of poison.

HAVING SUFFERED much from Contagious Blood Poison, after using half a dozen bottles of S.S.S. I was RESTORED TO PERFECT HEALTH, and all eruptive sores disappeared. You are at liberty to make any use of my statement that you wish.—J. CROSBY BYRON, 208 Third Avenue, Pittsburg, Pa.

"Brushing and Dusting 'Em."

It makes no difference with us whether you wish to paint your house, varnish your furniture, polish your shoes, or dust before or after sweeping, we can fit you out with the brushes and dusters. We are naming some very entertaining prices on Feather Dusters, either wholesale or retail. We also have the finest line of Chamois Skins and Sponges in Atlanta. Don't waste time looking elsewhere when you want anything in our line, for we make prices and others follow. We have said little about Paint Brushes so far, but we will open the ball in that line later on. Did you say Window Glass? Well yes, we have less stock than the combined trade of the South, (and upon investigation you may find our prices less,) but our assortment of sizes is complete, our prices are right and those are the points of interest to the public. IN THE COURTS.

A $14,000 Verdict In a Damage Suit.

PONDER'S CASE COMES UP TODAY.

Freeman & Crankshaw's Statement. Matters of News About the Courthouse.

The Central railroad's treasury will soon be drawn upon to the tune of $14,000 by Mr. J. S. Wiggins.

That's the size of the verdict given him yesterday by the jury before whom his case was tried.

It is not likely that the Central road officials will have the case carried furth.

Mr. Wiggins was a mail clerk running between Atlanta and Savannah until January 23d last. On that day he was on his train which was run into by another train at East Point, and a complete wreck was the result. Mr. Wiggins was badly hurt, and has not been able to walk without the aid of crutches since that time.

He brought suit against the road for $25,000.

The trial of the case was begun before Judge Westmoreland Wednesday and ended yesterday.

A verdict for $14,000 was the result in favor of the plaintiff.

The case was a very strong one and the verdict, although it gave Mr. Wiggins good damages, was not a surprise.

The Ponder Case.

Walter Ponder will be given a hearing before Judge Richard Clark this morning on an application for bail.

The hearing will begin at 9 o'clock this morning, and will be the only case heard by Judge Clark today.

All the witnesses in the case have been summoned to appear in court this morning and will be examined just the same as at a regular trial.

The history of the case is pretty well known. Ponder was arrested about six weeks ago charged with accomplishing the ruin of Zetta Clark. The girl was only thirteen years old, and at the time of Ponder's arrest the case looked rather dark for him.

It is claimed that the testimony of Dr. Greene will be sufficient to acquit Ponder of the charge.

The case against Ponder was made at the instance of Mrs. Brittain, who had him arrested. He was at first turned loose, and skipped out for Tennessee, where he was afterwards captured by Policeman Wilson.

Zetta Clark was sent to the asylum at Milledgeville, and is there yet. Solicitor Hill has received a letter from Dr. T. O. Powell, of the asylum, stating that the girl is too ill to come to Atlanta to testify in the case. For this reason a postponement may be asked today.

Ponder is represented by Colonel Thomas W. Latham.

The Defendant Wins.

The case of John Bryant vs. the Richmond and Danville road for $10,000 damage, which has been in progress before Judge VanEpps for a day or so, resulted in a verdict for the road.

The case of James Bailey vs. the Louisville and Nashville road was taken up after the Bryant case was finished and had not been completed up to the hour of adjournment. It will be resumed this morning.

The Tolleson Case.

The case against J. H. & A. L. James, growing out of the Tolleson case, which began on Monday and has occupied the civil branch of the superior court since, is still in progress, and may not be concluded today. A great volume of evidence has been produced, and a number of attorneys are interested in the case, and will have to make speeches. Quite a sum is involved, and the result of it is awaited with interest.

They Make a Statement.

Messrs. Freeman & Crankshaw yesterday issued a statement to their unsecured creditors. The statement shows the estimated value of the assets, as well as the amount of the liabilities.

The assets aggregate in value $81,587.49. The stock is estimated at $58,716; the fixtures at $6,284.96, and the notes and accounts held by the firm amount to $16,586.53.

The liabilities fall just a few dollars under the assets, amounting to $81,107.21. Of this amount $40,540.73 is secured and $40,566.48 is unsecured.

No application for a receiver has yet been made by the unsecured creditors, but it cannot be told what will be done. The unsecured creditors have been waiting for the statement of the firm, and will decide what will be done in a day or so.

For His Son.

Robert Tindall yesterday brought suit against the East Tennessee road for $20,000 damages.

He is the father of Morgan D. Tindall, the brave engineer who met such a tragic death on the East Tennessee road last year. Tindall was one of the most popular locomotive engineers in Atlanta.

Sued the City.

The Ledford family wants $28,000 damages out of the city of Atlanta.

Three separate suits were filed in the city court yesterday for this amount.

It seems that on Christmas night Green Ledford and Mrs. Henrietta Ledford fell into a hole in Chapel street and were both badly injured.

Green Ledford brings suit for $11,000 damages; Mrs. Henrietta Ledford sues for $12,000, and William Ledford, husband of the latter, sues for $6,000. Mr. John W. Cox brings the suits.

For Medical Services.

Dr. G. W. Wright yesterday filed a suit for $120 against the Atlanta and Florida road. The claim is for medical services, and for medicine furnished to parties injured while in the service of that road.

S. H. Richards brings suit against the East Tennessee for $700 for failure to deliver freight.

"The Dazzler" Tonight.

One of the best attractions of the season will be seen at the opera house tonight—bonnie Kate Castleton heading Cosgrove & Grant's brilliant array of comedians in the farcical dream of merriment, "The Dazzler"—a cast of twenty people, including the inimitable comedian, Joseph Ott, and the epitome of the terpsichorean art, piquant, petite Lena Merville. This all forms an aggregation of farcical and theatrical talent hard to beat. The securing of such a talented artiste as Kate Castleton was a great stroke of policy on the part of the management. She is without doubt one of the most popular and well known of the comediennes of the present day. A charming stage presence, excellent voice, and that wondrous magnetism without which no artist ever achieves great success, all combine to make Kate Castleton one of the most unique, original and attractive of the fair footlight favorites. Her ballad singing is one of her strongest points, and her famous song "For Goodness Sake Don't Say I Told You," will never grow old or pall on the taste of the public. It is her own; for, although hundreds have sung it, none ever succeeded in singing it like bounie Kate. There is a lace-trimmed wickedness, a delicious combination of the naughty and demure, which gives a unique charm to her singing. "The Dazzler" is not an untried play. It was one of the successes of last season, and has the stamp of metropolitan approval from a series of engagements at no less than four New York theaters during the past season.

The Divine Sarah.

Next Monday is the day set for the opening of the sale of reserved seats for the great Bernhardt's appearance on the night of the following Monday, January 25th. "La Tosca," the very best play, and the strongest of all her great characters, has been selected, although a matinee cannot be given on the same day, as "La Tosca" is too heavy a piece to permit of the stage being used in the afternoon before it. Messrs. Abbey and Grau have determined to make the southern tour of the great actress a thorough success in every detail, and Mr. Henry E. Abbey will leave his other attraction in his partner's hands, in order to supervise this trip personally. When it is considered that we are to have the greatest living acrress, in a play written for her by the greatest living author, the announcement of the date of opening of the advance sale should be sufficient.

THE ATLANTA NATIONAL BUILDING & LOAN ASS'N.

A Splendid Showing from a Prosperous Institution.

IN ANOTHER COLUMN WILL BE FOUND

The Second Annual Statement of the Condition of the Atlanta National Building and Loan Association to Which Attention Is Directed,

No financial institution in the south can make a more gratifying exhibit to its shareholders, and the managers are to be congratulated upon their success.

The legislature of Georgia seems to have recognized the importance and great popularity of her national building and loan associations. At the last session of the general assembly a law was passed to regulate this class of associations, compelling them to deposit with the state treasurer or a legally chartered trust company at least three fourths of all the securities held by them, to be held in trust for all the stockholders and creditors, thus virtually guaranteeing shareholders against loss. Around few other institutions, if any, does the state surround the investor with such safeguards, and it would seem that no one in the state or out of it need hesitate to invest in the shares of these associations, at least so far as safety is concerned,

The annual meeting of shareholders was held at the office of the association in the Gould building on the 13th instant, and received the reports of the officers and unanimously re-elected the old board of directors, consisting of General Gordon, C. S. Kingsbery, W. W. Draper, E. C. Atkins, Malcolm Johnston, J. W. Goldsmith and J. H. Johnson.

The directors then held a meeting and re-elected all the officers as follows:

President, E. C. Atkins; vice president and general counsel, Malcolm Johnston; treasurer, C. S. Kingsbery; secretary J. W. Goldsmith; manager agencies, J. H. Johnson.

There Will Be No Fight.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., January 14.—[Special.]—Concerning the sensational reports of preparations for a fight at Coal Creek, a state official, who receives daily advices from that point, said today: "There will be no attack made. There are a few hot heads urging a renewal of the trouble, but the very large majority of the miners think their best interests require that there be no further molestation of the convicts. They heartily endorse the agreement made to not return the convicts to Briceville. This agreement has not been formerally adopted yet, but it will be before the week is ended. The original fight was against working convicts at Briceville, and the sensible men are satisfied to have gained their point."

How's Your Liver?

Is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy Liver. When the Liver is torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undigested, poisoning the blood; frequent headache ensues; a feeling of lassitude, despondency and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged. Simmons Liver Regulator has been the means of restoring more people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy Liver than any agency known on earth. It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy.

NEVER BEEN DISAPPOINTED,

As a general family remedy for dyspepsia, Torpid Liver, Constipation, etc., I hardly ever use anything else, and have never been disappointed in the effect produced; it seems to be almost a perfect cure for all diseases of the Stomach and Bowels.

Railroad Commission of Georgia

I. N. TRAMMELL, Chairman.
VIRGIL POWERS,
ALLEN FORT, } Commissioners.

A. C. BRISCOE, Secretary.

ATLANTA, Ga., January 7, 1892.

CIRCULAR NO. 207.

From and after the 20th day of February, the following Rules will take effect:

GENERAL RULE NO. 5.

It shall be the duty of each railroad company doing business in the State of Georgia to furnish to the Railroad Commission, upon demand, any books or papers in the possession of said railroad company and a written transcript or copy of any paper in the possession of said railroad company, which may appear to the Commission as necessary to aid them in the discharge of their duty.

RULE No. 20 is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

No. 20.—Lumber, Coal, Lime, Brick, Stone, and all articles for which estimated weights are given in Classification (except Live Stock, Ale and Beer, and empty Ale and Beer packages, L. C. L.), will be taken at actual weight when the weight can be ascertained, but when the weight cannot be ascertained, will be charged at the following estimated rates. This not to interfere, however, with the DUTY of Receiving Agent to weigh, if possible, and correct to actual weight. But whenever consignee or shippers of Lumber, Shingles or Laths, or the initial road over which shipment is made, shall claim an over or undercharge in freight on account of error in weight, the equity of such claim shall be determined by the application of the estimated weights of Lumber, Shingles or Laths given in this Rule, to a sworn itemized invoice of the shipment on which error is claimed, and the charges to be collected or paid shall be thus fixed. Provided that the roads may require at stations where there are no weighing scales, that the shipper furnish an itemized invoice before receiving the shipment.

The following has been adopted as Rule No. 17 of the Rules Governing the Transportation of Passengers:

RULE NO. 17.

On all passenger trains in this State the railroads shall furnish safe and adequate heating appliances, and shall keep the passenger coaches sufficiently warm to make the passengers comfortable whenever the weather is cold enough to make heating necessary or desirable to the passengers.

A Few Reflections.

Almost without exception, the editors and politicians who are most prominent in arranging the details and preparing the platform of the next democratic campaign take little account of the tremendous forces which have been and are still at work in the south amongst the agricultural and laboring classes. The Charleston News and Courier, for instance, declares that the south will vote for the democratic nominee, whoever he may, the inference being that any candidate and any platform will suit the southern people, so long as the candidate and the platform emanate from the democratic convention.

This view is based on the situation that grows out of the negro vote, but if The News and Courier had taken the trouble to study recent developments in its own state we think it would agree with THE CONSTITUTION that the farmers are not as ready to support any candidate and any platform at this time as they were a few years ago. Recent results in South Carolina have developed this fact beyond all question, and, although it is an unpalatable fact, it would not be good politics to ignore it. Those who take account of this farmers' movement know that it has extended beyond South Carolina, and is now an active and vigorous element in every southern state.

Short-sighted editors have sneered at the movement, and ridiculed the demands of the farmers, without pausing to consider the fact that these demands grow simply and naturally out of the situation. THE CONSTITUTION has resisted the efforts of some of its contemporaries to read the farmers out of the party because they have formulated the subtreasury plan on the Ocala platform. To read out of a party the bulk of its voters is not a healthy proceeding. THE CONSTITUTION has seen nothing in the movement to cause alarm, but the thoughtlessness with which many of our contemporaries have treated it has given us some concern. We think that the fact that the farmers have found out where the shoe pinches is a very good thing for the party and for the country. The subtreasury plan would never have been heard of but for the existence of the class legislation to match it, and all that the farmers demand is that they shall be placed on a footing with the rest of the people, so far as financial legislation is concerned. They demand financial relief and reform, and it is a demand which the democratic party cannot afford to ignore.

The Charleston News and Courier need not be too sure that the democrats of the south will vote for any candidate on any platform that may be put forward. It need not go far from its narrow urban environment to discover its mistake. Does it suppose that the farmers of South Carolina will support a democratic candidate opposed to the free coinage of silver, standing on a platform which ignores the demand for financial relief and reform? If it does, it has made a fruitless application of the lesson which the farmers of that state recently taught it. We may be very sure that the leaders and platform makers of the party will not make the mistake of ignoring the movement which has been going on among the southern farmers.

Right at our hand is a text on the subject from The Monroe Advertiser, one of the most conservative newspapers in Georgia, printed in a county where the intelligence of the farmer has its highest development. "Tariff reform," says The Monroe Advertiser, "is put down in the book of the political manipulators as the only great issue to be fought out just now, while other important issues are to be left in the background for the present. But will this course satisfy the clamorous demands of the sunbrowned and horny-handed democrats scattered all over the country, who know themselves to be sorely pressed financially from other sources besides the tariff, and who are sadly experiencing the need of other great reforms as well as of tariff reform?" The Advertiser goes on to say that the platform of principles must be "broad enough to cover every important issue, and the rights and interests of all classes, even to the humblest plowman."

This is only another way of saying that the views of the farmers of the south are not to be ignored with impunity. For the first time since the war, the democratic leaders will have to take note of the demands and desires of the southern farmers in framing a national platform, and in nominating a candidate. The sooner this fact takes a firm hold on the minds of the politicians the better for the party and for the whole country.

It Is New York.

Disturbed and disgruntled by the recent democratic victory in New York—a victory far-reaching enough in its effects to be of a national character—The Tribune declares that "the electoral vote of New York will not make the next president." As it stands, this statement is true, but it is not true as The Tribune means it. The electoral vote of New York will not make the next president because it will require 223 electoral votes to make the president, and New York has but thirty-six. Yet, in another and a wider sense, the electoral votes of New York will make the president, because they are necessary to democratic success. This necessity will prove to be overpowering when the time comes. The candidate must of necessity be satisfactory to New York—therefore, the candidate that New York selects or settles on will be selected by the democratic convention.

New Jersey and Connecticut are pretty sure to go with New York, not only in the convention, but in the election. This year Connecticut has an additional incentive to vote with the democrats, if that were necessary—the republican larceny of the governor's office—and Indiana, with a democratic majority of sixty-six on joint ballot in the legislature, is not likely to vote with the republicans this year. Yet if Connecticut should fail, Michigan would give enough democratic electoral votes with some to spare.

New York holds the key to the situation.

"Number One."

In a sermon delivered last Sunday in Brooklyn, the Rev. Thomas Dixon, Jr., the sensational young preacher who is so much quoted just now, declared that "the abuse of our public highways today is little short of highway robbery." Then he pitched into various corporations, and said that they went in for personal gain, and not for public accommodation. In the course of his remarks he made the following points:

Jay Gould didn't invest his money for the good of the public. He invested it strictly in the interest of number one, and so did the other gentlemen who went in with him. He is not a charity organization. Not much. Such is the situation. What are you going to do about it? Mr. Gould can't hear all your complaints. He hasn't time. He is busy clipping coupons, and the chances are you would do the same thing if you were in his place. It is human nature.

Commenting on this sermon, The Richmond State pertinently asks if young Dixon is not looking out for "number one" when he gets off such clap-trap. What sense is there in talking such unmitigated balderdash? We all know that self-interest is the mainspring of human action, but why remind people of it from the pulpit, and tell them that they would probably imitate Jay Gould if they were in his place?

It is the silliest sort of whimpering to be all the time raising the cry that millionaires and corporations engage in business to promote their own interests. All men do the same thing. "Number one" is not likely to be forgotten by any man in the daily warfare called business.

The Two-Thirds Rule.

At each meeting of the national democratic convention in the past forty years and more the question has come up in the same old shape: Shall the two-thirds rule be adopted?

The Richmond Dispatch believes that this rule will be readopted this year. It says:

The two-thirds rule originated in the necessity which compelled the slave-holding states not to allow a man hostile to their peculiar institution to be elected president of the United States. The southern states in those times "stood like a stone wall" against northern interference with slavery, and as the southern states then cast more than one-third of the electoral votes in the whole union, it was clearly within their power to prevent the nomination of any aspirant whose views upon the slavery question, or rather upon questions growing out of the institution of slavery, were distasteful to them. The anti-slavery men styled the northerners who were willing to come to terms with the southern "slave-ocracy" "doughfaces." But stern necessity forced the southern democrats to stand together in favor of the two-thirds rule. And their northern democratic allies stood by them manfully up to 1861.

Ceasing the reason for the law, the law itself ceases. This is the ground upon which it is now proposed, as it was proposed in 1876, in 1880, in 1884 and in 1888, if not before 1876, to do away with a rule which has been adopted by every democratic national convention for the last forty years and longer—the two-thirds rule. The southern states are still solid, and feel as if they were in some degree protected by that rule. The other states are divided into western, northwestern, Pacific, etc., etc., and these several groups of states feel as if they, too, were interested in the preservation of the two-thirds rule. But the repeated adoption of that rule after the reason for its use has ceased to influence men's judments is to be found no doubt in the fact that it affords all sorts of minorities a protection which they cannot otherwise secure. For instance, if the monometallists should constitute more than one-third of the members of the democratic national convention of this year, they would be able to prevent the nomination of a bimetallist for president. Of course they could not nominate a monometallist. The two-thirds rule operates, so to speak, negatively, not affirmatively. We refer to this as a mere illustration; but every reader can see for himself that it would not be strange if a rule first accepted for one reason and afterwards perpetuated for other reasons should become a favorite rule in national conventions and defy all efforts to secure its repeal, or, rather we ought to say its disuse, seeing that it has to be affirmatively acted upon—adopted—by each succeeding national convention.

With these facts and arguments so strongly lodged in the democratic mind, it goes without saying that the two-thirds rule will have so many advocates in our next national convention that it will be a very difficult matter to get rid of it.

An Outside View.

The Cincinnati Commercial Gazette is disposed to make a light matter of the depression in the south caused by the low price of cotton. Speaking of the proposed decrease of our cotton output, it says:

If planters should decide to grow more corn and less cotton, there might be some excuse for that. But, after all, the question arises as to whether it would not be cheaper to purchase corn from the farmers of the great west than to substitute in the cotton-growing states corn for that staple? This is a question that solves itself from the standpoint of common sense. If cotton could be grown in the west as it is in the south, it would no doubt be found more profitable than cereals. But since this cannot be done, it remains to be considered whether cotton is not the most important and profitable product that can be raised in our southern states. It need not be apprehended that any foolishness will obtain in this direction.

As for the present depression in the prices of cotton, consumers of cotton will be benefited by it, and cotton planters will adapt themselves to the new order of things, while curtailing their expenses and producing cotton upon a more economical basis. That will settle matters, and it is the only way to settle it. Two bales of cotton at present prices are better than one at higher prices—the latter resulting from crop failures. Even at the present figures, the cotton crop of the south will bring more money into that part of the country than did the ante-war crops, and at the same time the people of the whole world that consume cotton will be benefited. Speculators at present may suffer, but the people will prosper, notwithstanding. There are no tears to be shed over the market values that result from bountiful harvests.

And yet The Commercial Gazette admits that there would be some excuse for growing more corn and less cotton. This is precisely the view of the recent convention of cotton planters at Memphis. The delegates to that convention were practical men, and after discussing the situation from every point of view it was their conclusion that is would be good policy to decrease our cotton production 20 per cent, and give more attention to cereals. Not one of them suggested that overproduction was a good thing for the world at large, and that the evils of low prices could be met by greater economy on the part of the planters. This point may occur to an outsider, but those who are familiar with life on a southern plantation will hesitate before recommending a reduction of expenses. Our planters live economically, and they employ cheap labor. The trouble they have to contend with it overproduction.

DID BROTHER BLAINE sympathize with Foraker?

MR. TELLER has made the proposal for an international monetary conference a republican measure. Teller knows what belongs to his party when he sees it "laying around loose."

THE MUGWUMPS may as well begin to practice modesty. They will not name the democratic candidate nor dictate the platform.

IT SEEMS to us that if the free trade Charleston News and Courier can afford to become a sea-island-cotton protectionist, it can afford to be democratic enough to advocate the free coinage of silver.

FORAKER'S BOOM has had the big end smashed in.

THE MUGWUMPS are getting together in Massachusetts. A man named Minns has invented a new party, which he calls the Columbian. This is just the thing for the mugwumps, and we hope they will spit on their hands and take hold of the affair with alacrity.

THE NEW YORK SUN alludes to "Billy Bowlegs," the great Seminole chief. It pains us to be compelled to correct our esteemed contemporary. The right name is "Billy Beauligs." According to the late "Major Jones" Thompson, Billy was the most beautifully formed Indian to be found among the Seminoles.

MR. MCKINLEY'S beautiful law seems to have a tendency to help on business failures. This is one phase of protection that the protectionists hadn't counted on.

THERE ARE some sensitive democrats who talk about "losing Massachusetts." It will be time enough to indulge in this kind of talk when the democrats have gained that state. For fifty years and more it has voted for republican presidents.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

GARZA IS not keeping out of Mexico because he is afraid of Diaz, but because he does not care to run against the volcano. He proposes to wait until he finds out which is on top, the government or the volcano.

DR. I. S. HOPKINS is in great demand as an educator. Some years ago he was warmly supported for the chancellorship of the State University. He is at present talked of for the chancellorship of the Vanderbilt University if the venerable Dr. Garland should resign that position. Many of his closest friends think that his proper sphere is the pulpit. He is barely on the shady side of fifty, with vigorous health, and it may happen that he will yet reach the episcopacy. Meanwhile he is growing in public favor as president of the State Technological school.

THE LONDON correspondent of The New York Tribune, speaking of Guy de Maupassant's violent insanity, says: "Paralysis is creeping upon him, and his doctors say that even should he live his mind is gone. He had it in him to be the first living writer of French fiction. There are those who think that he already was, and, if you have regard only to two things, he certainly was. He had no living equal as a writer of French, save perhaps M. Dumas, and no equal in the structure of short stories. There is at this moment both in England and America a widespread admiration for Mr. Kipling. He, too, has proved that he can tell a story briefly. He has a terseness of method and a power of omitting the non-essential which are far more American than English. But to compare Mr. Kipling with M. de Maupassant is to compare a clever beginner with a master. Mr. Kipling has this advantage: He may be read in Sunday schools, and M. de Maupassant can not. But questions of morality are one thing, questions of literature another."

A COLD WAVE.

A Georgia editor celebrates his good fortune in the following exhilarating lines:

"The cash is comin' as slick as grease;
We've got where we just don't care;
What men ain't justices of the peace
Are runnin' like bricks for mayor!"

WANTED TO WARM HIM UP.

"Here we have freezing weather," said the editor, "and not a stick of wood in the house!"

"Too bad!" said the new parson, "but come over to the meeting and I'll preach a sermon on the hereafter."

Pleasant A. Stovall's life of Robert Toombs is meeting with a royal reception from the press—such a reception, in fact, as the work deserves.

A HINT TO THE POETS.

"Under the snow are the roses laid,
In the night of death and doubt."
Why don't you borrow a first-class spade
And shovel the poor things out?

Covington Enterprise: "Jurymen will now get in the box," said Judge Boynton, at the last term of our court; whereupon a fresh Newton county juror did his best to crawl in a pine box that was used in the courtroom to keep the water bucket on. A tender-hearted bailiff pulled him out and gently garnered him in one of the high-back chairs on the left of his honor, and there he sat as straight as an arrow, looking as dignified as a donkey in a hailstorm.

Great men are dying with the grip. Let the Georgia editors be careful.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Atlanta's First Banquet.

EDITOR CONSTITUTION—I ask permission, in the interest of true history, to correct a statement made in your issue of Sunday last, to-wit: That "the first banquet ever given in this town" was that given to General Pope (instead of "Polk" as printed.) My recollection is that the first banquet ever given in Atlanta, was given by the Irish Greens, the first volunteer military company ever organized here. Captain Allison Nelson commanding. The banquet was given in 1851, in the long room of the Atlanta hotel, the late Dr. Joseph Thompson, proprietor. The second—a more elaborate and exceedingly pleasant affair—was given later, but perhaps the same year, in the same room, under the same genial proprietorship, in honor of President Millard Fillmore; (and if the presumption may be pardoned) the third and fourth banquets were given by the writer hereof, at his then residence in our northern suburbs, in the years of 1853 and 1854, to the editors, newspaper men generally and master printers of the city, on the anniversary of the birth of Benjamin Franklin. Respectfully,

C. R. HANLEITER.

January 11, 1892.

Cleveland, Hill, Wall Street, Etc.

EDITOR CONSTITUTION—We were, till recently, hoping much for the harmony of the democracy. Before Mr. Cleveland wrote his unfortunate letter to the reform club of New York, there was not a note of discord in the democratic party on the question of free coinage, to the best of the writer's recollection. If northern democrats were with the so-called republican party, it was probably not then generally known. In the south and in the west, I think, we might say the democracy were practically unanimous on the question. Our country had maintained the coinage of silver from the beginning up till wicked wreckers conspired to overthrow our financial system.

Has the great body of the democracy no wisdom on the money question? Or must we follow the lead of one man and give up the battle and surrender to the enemy? I was a democrat, I apprehend, some time before Mr. Cleveland. I carefully read the debates in which Messrs. Clay, Webster and Calhoun engaged when they were all senators. I was intimately acquainted with the questions that agitated the country then, and have kept up that acquaintance till the present time. I think I knew what was true democracy then, and that I have had a like knowledge ever since.

We are advised, as I understand the matter, to abandon the free coinage of silver and go over to the Wall street wreckers, and only confront the enemy with the one single issue of tariff reform. We are all for that, and these men who propose this reckless and wicked abandonment of principle say we will be beaten if we do not pursue this course. Shall we do it? Did not the Farmers' Alliance unanimously demand the free coinage of silver? Almost the whole country is demanding the free coinage of silver, and why should we be beaten for putting that issue in our platform? If we abandon that issue it would be a very cowardly act, and we ought to be beaten.

The bushwhackers who have been fighting Governor Hill all the time, I understand, now claim that Hill has gone over to them, yet they continue their war on him; and if they are correct as to Hill's position, it is to be hoped they will succeed in slaying him politically. We, as democrats, have been very much opposed to getting up a third party, but if we follow the cowardly advice of the few who propose to go over to the enemy on all but one question, what shall we say to the alliancemen whom we have been telling all the time that the democracy is all right and would give them all that they legally ask? If Mr. Hill and Mr. Cleveland both oppose free coinage, the party ought not to run either. If New York cannot get right we can find states enough and men enough outside who are. Let all who desire to go over to the enemy, go. A DEMOCRAT.

ETCHED AND SKETCHED.

Professor E. C. Branson, formerly superintendent of the Athens city schools, but now the general agent for Ginn & Co., the Boston book firm, and one of the best known educators in the south, was at the Kimball yesterday.

The Southern Educational Society, of which Professor Branson is a conspicuous member, is going to meet in Atlanta this year. This was decided by the society at its last regular annual meeting held last summer on Lookout mountain. The executive committee of the society will meet in Atlanta on the 5th of February to make arrangements for the coming meeting and to arrange a full programme.

"The Southern Educational Society," said Professor Branson yesterday, "is getting to be a big concern. The thing was first formed at White Sulphur Springs several years ago and has been gaining strength every day. There are but two of these organizations, the National Educational Society and the Southern Educational Society."

The railroads will all give reduced rates to the next meeting, and more than five hundred leading men of letters in the south will be in Atlanta.

There was a meeting of the directors of Princeton factory, of Athens, held at the Kimball yesterday. This is one of the oldest cotton factories in Georgia, being the second one ever established in the state. It is owned by the heirs of the late Dr. J. S. Hamilton, of Athens, and the directors are Messrs. Gay and J. S. Hamilton, S. G. McLendon, of Thomasville, and J. S. Davant, of Memphis. Under the guidance of General Manager J. S. Hamilton, the factory is successful, as shown by the report at yesterday's meeting.

"It's a mighty strange thing to me," said a railroad man yesterday, "that the Georgia, Carolina and Northern railroad should retain every civil engineer so long after the road has been completely surveyed and graded. It must mean something, and why shouldn't it mean that this railroad company is going to survey further?

"I believe the Georgia, Carolina and Northern has bigger things in view than is suspected."

* * *

Hon. S. G. McLendon, of Thomasville, was in the city yesterday among his numerous Atlanta friends, won by him when he was a member of the legislature from Thomas county several years ago. Guyt doesn't say so himself, but there are a great many people in that part of Georgia who may claim the honor, some of these bright days, of voting him a congressman. He went to Montgomery last night.

The ever glorious and genial Colonel H. W. J. Ham, of Gainesville, one of the best of good fellows and the friend of friends, was at the Kimball yesterday, as jolly as ever. He says Gainesville is looking forward with eagerness and hope to the completion of the Augusta and Chattanooga.

* * *

Mr. Harry Edwards, of Macon, was in Atlanta yesterday on his way to New York for a short visit. When Mr. Edwards left journalism, the profession lost one of its brightest stars. He still retains a fondness for it. In the days when he was associated with the late Colonel Albert Lamar their glittering periods were quoted from ocean to ocean. Mr. Edwards has not given up magazine work, though, and from time to time delights his admirers with some quaint story.

The bicyclists or as they call themselves, wheelmen, are axious to see Peachtree street paved with asphalt. What a magnificent roadway it will make for them, once it is asphalted!

Bicyclists are the advocates and friends of good roads everywhere, and the principal object of the league of American Wheelmen is to agitate the subject of good roads throughout the country. This league has a membership of 35,000. Atlanta has only one or two. Augusta and Columbus have but two each, while Savannah has twenty-five members. Savannah, though, has smooth asphalt pavements. The league's most important committee is the one on improvement of highways.

There is a pretty close race between the wheel and the trotting horse. After many years of breeding we have a trotting record of 2:09, or it is within a fractional part of a second of that. The world's champion bicycle rider, William Windle, has a record of a mile in 2:15. Wheelmen expect to beat the trotter yet.

Savannah's club has invited the wheelmen of the State to meet in the Forest City during the spring and hold a series of races and parades. The president of the club is Mr. Samuel M. Whiteside, who is the chief consul or head official of the league members of Georgia.

Hal Moore tells me that John Boifeuillet is receiving a great deal of encouragement all over the state in his speakership aspirations, and, as they come to him voluntarily, his friends place great confidence in them. Bill Fleming's friends are just as confident, and the indications are that the race between these gentlemen may be highly interesting. And they may not have the field entirely to themselves. It is too early to count legislative chickens.

A youth claiming to be a Swedish count has been ringing an Atlanta feature into the tale he told in his efforts to get some money in an easy and graceful fashion. He gave his name as Count Clarence Van Rossen, and he figured in police circles upon complaint of a feltow countryman named Sueva. The "count" had some building and loan stock certificates which he wanted to sell at a remarkably low figure, and he explained that the reason he was willing to sell the certificates was because he was engaged to marry his cousin, a beautiful girl of Atlanta, Ga., worth $200,000 in her own right, and he wanted to consummate the arrangement as speedily as possible. The friend investigated and found the stock certificates not what they were represented, hence the count's arrest. Who the wealthy Atlanta girl is can only be guessed.

A wager between a couple of brokers the other day resulted in an interesting experiment as to the rapidity with which telegraphing can be done between New York and London, writes Colonel John Cockerill. It was settled by actual tests that a cablegram can be sent to London from the New York stock exchange and an answer received in four minutes. Ordinarily the time is much longer, but on this occasion a special effort was made, with the above remarkable result. From this it may be inferred that the cable service is as nearly perfect as it is possible to make it. The cable business is constantly growing, and at present nearly nine hundred messages are sent daily from New York to London between the hours of 10 and 12. All the commercial business is done in cipher, and so condensed is the code that a considerable message can be sent at a comparatively small outlay. The regular tariff is 25 cents a word. The messages are sent by overland wire to Heart's Content, Newfoundland, where they are transmitted via the ocean cable to Valencia, Ireland, thence direct to London. The commercial business between the New York and London stock exchanges has become so extensive that three and four operators are now required constantly on the floor of the New York stock exchange to handle that business alone.

Congressman Crane, from Texas, was in Atlanta yesterday on his way home from the national capital.

He is going home to defend a prisoner before the courts of Texas charged with murder, and had to go by way of Memphis and Texarkana in order to avoid the washouts and get home in time to try the case.

Congressman Crane is the only native of Texas who has ever represented that state in the halls of the national congress, and he is a Texan to the manor born, too, genial and clever, jolly and baronial in his airs of genuine southern hospitality.

"What means all this fight on Crisp by you western fellows?" was asked the Texan congressman.

"Oh nothing. It is all bosh and carries no significance with it—none whatever. Of course, Crisp has given us a dose. He gave me one myself. He took a chairmanship from me and put me third on a second-class committee, but I don't mind that. I am satisfied, and can bear up under it if the national congress can," and the "dark-eyed child of the west" burst into jovial laughter.

"Oh, no," he said, "Crisp is all right, and is a good speaker. We are doing nothing now because he is sick."

"Will you pass a silver bill up there this session?"

"Yes, I think so. I am against it myself, but I believe it is certain to go through. I believe I am the only one of my delegation against it."

The western congressman went down to West Point night before last, but had to come back to Atlanta and spend the day on account of the floods.

Mr. Lew Hutchins, of Lawrenceville, spent yesterday at the Kimball. He says the Georgia, Carolina and Northern railroad is running a regular schedule to Lawrenceville now, and the people of that city are eagerly looking forward to the time when they will be linked with Atlanta.

Judge Thomas G. Lawson, congressman from the eighth district, passed through Atlanta yesterday for Washington. He has been at home with the grip for several weeks, but is well again now, and "happy on the way" back to Washington.

It pays to be a professional starter of races. Starter Caldwell, the best in the business, has just made a contract with the Hudson County Jockey Club and the Saratoga Racing Association for the years 1892 and 1893. He gets $60,000 for his two years' duties, under conditions that give him considerable leisure.

GEORGIA POLITICS.

The Morganton News says the political pot is beginning to simmer in Fannin, and adds: "Before many more months have passed she will be flopping and boiling, and the political thermometer will be 90 in the shade. It is sliently whispered around that J. W. Gilliam will be the republican candidate for senator in the forty-first district. Of course there will be plenty of aspirants, and other prominent republicans will be heard from. We hear the names of W. D. Smith, Adam Davenport and A. J. Moore spoken of by the democrats."

The democratic executive committee of Montgomery county, at its recent meeting, recommended nominations by district delegations. A mass meeting of the democratic party of Montgomery county will be held at Mt. Vernon on the first Monday in February, for the purpose of determining whether or not the party shall nominate candidates for the various county offices, including a representative, and if so in what manner nominations shall be made. Judge McRae is democratic executive committeeman of the county.

With reference to the statement that Hon. A. S. Clay would probably be in the next senatorial race, The Marietta Journal says:

"We casually met Colonel Clay, and asked him would he be a candidate for senator? He replied: 'The matter is premature. It is entirely too early to think about entering a race. I am now engaged in the practice of law, which occupies all of my time, and which is more suited to my taste than politics.'"

The Dawson News says: "At the proper time, Terrell will make an entry in the congressional race; and will go in to win."

In a column of political gossip The Carrollton Daily Times says:

"There are many and varied opinions as to who will be Carroll's representative next time. I have heard one of Carrollton's foremost young lawyers spoken of often, possibly more frequently than any other one man. The name of this young man is Colonel Edgar W. Watkins. Next I hear Hon. John W. Brooks, the president of Carroll County Farmers' Alliance, spoken of often, and by all classes; also Hon. G. W. Harper, who has made us one of the best representatives we ever had; he has friends in every nook and corner. Mr. Harper would again be a credit to our county in the lower house, and then next year he is in line for the senate, then congress. Hon. H. Hogan is spoken of by many; also B. A. Sharp, of near Carrollton. Hon. John K. Roop has many admirers; also Hon. S. E. Grow, of Carrollton; J. T. Talbot, of Villa Rica; J. A. Aycock, of Whitesburg; G. F. Spence, of Kansas; Dr. Rowe, of Temple; John Broome, of Sand Hill; Nick Fain, of Carrollton. These men I have spoken of, and any two of them would make our county good representatives. They say that Hon. R. H. Jackson, of Heard, will be pretty apt to again represent this district as senator. Who will they be?

GEORGIA PRESS COMMENT.

From The Americus, Ga., Times-Recorder.

Mr. Cleveland's chances for nomination depend upon his accepting the views of the dominant faction of the democracy. The indications are that he will not do so. This will rule him out, and, as New York will without doubt be permitted to name the candidate, it need surprise nobody if David B. Hill is put forward as the standard-bearer of the national democracy.

From The Conyers, Ga., Solid South.

We notice that Colonel Larry Gantt is advocating a stay law. Suppose we had a stay law, and the retail merchant could not collect from the farmer, and the wholesale merchant could not collect from the retail merchant? What would become of the wholesale merchant, and where would the retail merchant get goods to furnish the farmer for 1892? Pass a stay law today and you cut off the only chance for the farmers to get supplies, and bring upon the country a worse famine than ever afflicted Ireland. Farmers are opposed to the law, and it's well that they are.

From The Columbus, Ga., Enquirer-Sun.

It is not impossible that Governor Northen will have to call an extra session of the legisiture to straighten out the railroad situation in this state. It is a question, however, whether the people would not prefer to let the railroad situation take care of itself, to the infliction of an extra session of the late Georgia legislature.

From The Barnesville, Ga., Gazette.

A correspondent to an Atlanta paper from Milner, says that Hon. John E. Gardner will probably be the next senator from this senatorial district. The said correspondent says he has reason for believing that he is the choice of Bibb and Monroe. The Gazette would not be at all surprised to see a scramble for the office in Pike, for it is Pike's time to select her man.

From The Rome, Ga., Tribune.

The brainiest man in the Georgia delegation in congress is Henry G. Turner. For the eleventh district to shelve him for a new and amateur representative would not speak well for the intelligence and business sense of the people of that district. The Brunswick Times, a loyal Brunswick paper, ought to drop its advocacy of a Brunswick man for congress and give its strong support to Mr. Turner. That would be business.

POLITICS IN PARAGRAPHS.

From The New York Sun, Dem.

It is scarcely our business, but surely we may be allowed as students of contemporary humor to record that the nomination of Mr. Cleveland by the mugwumps and the Columbians now seems a certainty; and we trust that all parties to the engagement will be as happy as they deserve.

From The St. Louis Globe-Democrat, Rep.

There is a great deal of talk among the democrats as to the proper man for them to nominate for the presidency, but the fact is the democrats never nominated the proper man for the presidency except when they put up and elected Jeff Davis.

From The Cincinnati Commercial Gazette; Rep.

The democratic leaders in congress are afraid to attack the protective tariff, and do not dare announce a free silver coinage policy. The democrats are, therefore, a 'possum party, which is going to sleep in the hope of waking up in good condition next fall.

From The New York Morning Advertiser, Dem.

It is quite possible that the close and intimate friend of Mr. Cleveland who told a Morning Advertiser reporter, a few weeks ago, that Mr. Cleveland was in no sense a candidate for the presidency, was cutting pretty close to the truth.

If he looks over the field and sizes up the chances, Mr. Cleveland will, if he is wise, conclude to stick to his large and lucrative law practice.

Sensational Preaching.

From The Nashville Christian Advocate.

At the bottom of sensational preaching are two motives: An itching for notoriety, and an unwillingness to do real intellectual work. The latter motive is often dominant. It takes immense effort to prepare a sermon that shall fitly expound some portion or aspect of religious truth; but it is not difficult to ring the changes in a superficial and declamatory way upon current, social, political and religious events.

TILLMAN'S TROUBLES

The Governor of South Carolina Under Scrutiny.

SOME OF HIS PERSONAL ACTIONS PROBED

Johnson Hagood Suggested as the Man to Head the Campaign Against Tillman.

COLUMBIA, S. C., January 14.—[Special.]—Sorth Carolina's "reform" governor, B. R. Tillman, the horny-handed farmer, has been placed in the pillory, and "how will he get out of it" will be the question ringing all over the state in the next day or two.

He stepped into a hornet's nest, and bids fair to be stung to death politically. It happens in this way: The governor has always been a violent advocate of double assessments for banks and railroads, and one of his campaign cries was that the auditors should see to it that individuals returned their property at its true value. It cropped out a few days ago that the governor had sold twelve cows to the lunatic asylum, an institution under his direct control, at $36 each.

The Governor's Tax Returns.

Now comes a dispatch from Edgefield, his home, giving an itemized list of the governor's tax returns, in which it is seen that these cows were returned at $10 each. Among the other very funny items are: "Fifteen hogs, $20; one piano, $20."

But this is not the worst of it. In his recent message to the legislature the governor advised against the practice of that body of extending the time for the payment of taxes from December to February. The usual resolution, however, was passed, though there were threats that the governor would veto it. When it went to the governor he held it more than the three days allowed and took no action on it whatever. During this time, however, he allowed it to be stated through the newspaper channel most favorable to him, that he intended to veto it. This, of course, frightened the country people, many of them in desperate circumstances, and those who had made arrangements to pay their taxes at the extended time, always allowed by the legislature, were badly thrown back.

Throughout the state it was the accepted belief, until later, when it was developed otherwise, that the bill had practically been vetoed, and that those who had not paid their taxes were in default. Here come the thunderbolt:

In a dispatch to The State from Edgefield are these words: "The governor, notwithstanding he was so anxious to raise tax money, and would not approve the resolution to extend the time, has not yet paid his own taxes."

Another Laughable Item.

Here is another laugh on the governor. It developed yesterday that he had exceeded the $500 allowed him for "repairs, improvement, insurance and lighting for the executive mansion."

It was asscertained that under this head he made the following purchases: For hanging pictures, $10.50; work that could be done by a darky in a day for $1. Combs, $1.50; chair and lounge $16.50; dish pan, 50 cents, and nearly $50 for flowers and pots. It should be stated that the extravagancies of this "farmer" governor were never heard of under the regime of the "aristocracy."

The Campaign Opened.

The political campaign has begun and from now on things will be red-hot. The democratic club of Blairs has nominated the following gentlemen for state officers: For governor, Johnson Hagood; for lieutenant governor, J. Q. Marshall.

Resolutions were adopted, by a unanimous vote, to support the ticket, believing them to be the most available men for the above named offices, and democrats of the true rank and file.

Today a suggestion is made that a state convention of those opposed to Tillman be held here on the 27th of March, to issue a manifesto setting forth the truth as to the financial condition and needs of the state, to name a state ticket and appoint a committee to take the movement in charge. This suggestion will very probably be adopted, and the incidents of two years ago will be re-enacted under still more exciting conditions.

FEMALE PHYSICIANS IN VIRGINIA.

An Animated Discussion Between the Old and the New.

RICHMOND, Va., January 14.—[Special.]—There was an animated discussion in the house of delegates over the bill providing for female physicians to attend the female wards of the asylums of the state.

The debate, which was participated in by several of the ablest members of the body, touched gently upon the sectional question, and the advanced ideas of the north and the more conservative customs of the south were brought in contrast. The patron, Mr. Koiner, cited many reasons why females should be placed in charge of the treatment of the insane of their own sex, and said that four or five of the best women in Virginia are now attending medical colleges in Philadelphia, with the view of fitting themselves for the practice of the profession of their choice.

Speaker Cardwell opposed the bill in a very strong speech, urging that the favored old commonwealth go slow in the matter of putting her daughters forward in the public professions. He said if it should become a law it would be a reflection upon the physicians of this state. The speaker said the system had never been adopted in the south, except by two states. Both of these, he declared, had abandoned it after trial. The bill was ordered to its engrossment and will pass.

A Negro Lynched in Ohio.

CINCINNATI, January 14.—Henry Corbin, a negro who murdered Mrs. Georgetta Homer, at Oxford, O., last Tuesday night, was lynched there at 10 o'clock tonight. He had been hiding ever since Tuesday in a shed within a few hundred feet of where the crime was committed.

CLEMENTS NOT IN IT.

From The Rome, Ga., Tribune.

President Harrison did not send Mr. Clements's name to the senate for a place on the interstate commerce commission. This is bad news. It is news that will cause a feeling of personal loss to a majority of the seventh district. It shows that President Harrison doesn't always pick out the best man.

From The Savannah, Ga., News.

It is to be regretted that Mr. Clements was not nominated. He would have made an excellent member of the commission.

From The Darien, Ga., Gazette.

At the very last moment the president concluded that the Georgian was too good a democrat, probably, and did not appoint him.

PEOPLE HERE AND THERE.

BOOTH.—A correspondent writes from New York that a recent sight he had of Edwin Booth gave him a shock, for the great actor looked "broken and patched." His step is less brisk, he bends more at the shoulders, and his eyes have lost their luster. He is sensitive on the subject of his health and his friends avoid talking about it.

DE RUTE.—One of the royal women of Europe whom the gossips are never weary of talking about is Mme. de Rute, best known as Mme. Ratazzi, who is now somewhere between sixty and seventy years of age. The granddaughter of Lucien Bonaparte, she was accounted in her day the most beautiful woman in Paris, but she was a perpetual thorn in the side of her kinsman, Napoleon III. The escapades of her youth are continued in her age, and she is just now the central figure of a scandal that is described as "hideous."

TENNYSON.—Tennyson was first moved to write verses, according to some special information which The Boston Globe has recently obtained, when sixteen years of age and upon a Sunday while staying home from church. The attempt was suggested by some one else as a means of occupying his spare time. The task was undertaken, so this story goes, and with such success that the youth was encouraged to try further.

Weather Forecast.

WASHINGTON, January 14.—Georgia: Clearing; slightly colder, northwest winds.

NOT ENDED YET.

The Strike of Expressmen Remains Unchanged.

MR. BRADFIELD RETURNS TO ATLANTA

From Nashville, Where He Has Been in Conference—The Situation in Atlanta.

The express messengers' strike is still on.

Both sides claim to be the winner, but the end is not yet.

So far the strike has been a sword which cuts both ways, but whose head will go off the future will tell. The express company suffers from the blockade in its business, and the messengers from being out of work.

The situation, as it now is, is a hard one to analyze.

On the one hand, the officials of the company declare that their business is not affected.

On the other, the messengers assert that the company is doing business under great disadvantages.

A messenger declared yesterday that the Southern Express Company had a larger force at work fifteen years ago, when the proportions of the company were much less than at present, than it has now.

Superintendent Mayes, of the express company, said last night that the company was hardly feeling the strike and was moving along nicely. New men were being put in harness and the regular runs were being well covered by competent men.

Goods for shipment by express were being received yesterday, as on the day before, "subject to delay," but the employes of the company explained this by saying that it was on account of the flood. Several washouts, they explained, had occurred on one or two of the runs leading out of Atlanta.

A number of extra men arrived here yesterday and were pressed into service as messengers. These are of the reserve force of the company, and have been working in its offices in various towns in the state and adjoining states. With this influx of reserve men, the non-union men and the men already put in the places of the strikers, the company managed to make nearly all its regular runs yesterday.

Mr. J. H. Bradfield, one of the head officials of the brotherhood, arrived here yesterday morning from Nashville, Tenn. He has been there with Chief Ziba Hurd and was sent back to Atlanta to keep the strikers together. He is confident of the ultimate success of the strikers.

There seems to be nothing in the report that the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers would join in the strike. There has been no meeting of the local brotherhood to take such a step. The regular meeting of the brotherhood will be held on Sunday afternoon.

The call wagons of the express company were running yesterday, as usual, bringing in freight.

No serious inconvenience has been caused by the strike so far.

NO RECEIVER YET.

The Atlanta and Florida Has so Far Escaped a Receiver.

The Atlanta and Florida is not in the hands of a receiver yet.

And it may escape a receivership, altogether.

Just now the parties at interest are at work trying to effect an adjustment of the indebtedness.

It seems that the one thing needful is about twenty thousand dollars of ready cash to liquidate the maturing obligations of the road, and pay its running expenses.

This sum may be arranged for today, and the receivership go up in smoke. It all depends.

Yesterday the case came before Judge Marshall J. Clarke.

The lawyers for both sides were present and ready for the legal fray.

Captain Harry Jackson, representing the bondholders, moved that the appointment of a receiver be deferred until the arrival of the legal representative of the New York bondholders. That gentleman, he stated, is expected to reach Atlanta today.

No objection was made by the lawyers who were seeking to have a receiver appointed, and Judge Clarke announced that the matter would go over until Saturday morning.

This gave the road an opportunity to do something to prevent going into the hands of a receiver.

A meeting of the directors was held yesterday afternoon. It was shown that $15,000 would relieve the Atlanta and Florida of its temporary financial embarrassment, and the directors were of the opinion that that sum could be raised.

The prospect now is that the sum will be raised and the receivership avoided. The bondholders hold this position, and Captain Jackson, who represents them, thinks that the trouble will be arranged.

In the meantime a number of small debts against the road are being pressed, but the ready money is not on hand to pay them.

Yesterday J. A. Forsyth, the boiler man, sued out an attachment against the road for a sum due him for work on the locomotives of the road.

The representative of the bondholders is expected here today and something will most likely be done.

If not, Judge Clark will appoint a receiver tomorrow.

The best medical authorities say the proper way to treat catarrh is to take a constitutional remedy, like Hood's Sarsaparilla.

THE FEDERAL CALENDAR

For the United States Court Will Be Taken Up February 15th—Forty Cases.

There has been about forty felony cases placed on the calendar of the criminal branch of the United States court for trials at the February term.

Only forty cases out of the large number on the felony docket have been given to the February term of court, and these will be taken up for a rapid disposition.

The trial of the damage suit against the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railway Company is going on in the civil branch of the United States court. The most of yesterday was occupied in empanneling juries and other preliminaries. The suit is for $15,000. The trial will probably occupy the rest of the week.

Superintendent L. M. Terrell, of the railway mail service, is out of town in the western portion of his territory looking after the arrangement and dispatch of delayed mails.

ON HIS BRIDAL TOUR

Ernest Lovick Is Arrested on a Telegram from South Carolina.

BUT HIS WIFE DOES NOT DESERT HIM.

He Is Guarded All Night at the Police Station With His Pretty Wife at His Side.

Ernest Lovick, a prominent resident and business merchant of Columbia, S. C., and a groom of a day, was arrested in Atlanta yesterday.

He was on a bridal tour, he said, and his faithful wife stayed with him at the station house.

The arrest was made at the request of the chief of police of Columbia.

Night before last he telegraphed Captain Connolly to apprehend Lovick, who was supposed to be en route for Texas, and who would arrive in Atlanta at 6 o'clock yesterday morning.

Call Officer John Abbott was detailed to watch for him. Promptly at the hour mentioned the train drew in sight, and a well-dressed gentleman, with his young and pretty wife, descended from the platform.

Immediately he was faced with a warrant and placed under arrest.

Lovick stoutly protested all innocence of any crime. The local officers were ignorant of the charges, and as soon as the South Carolinian reached the office of Captain Manley, a telegram was sent to Columbia.

To Patrolman Abbott the man gave the name of James Harmon. This and a description of him, together with the mention of his having been married the day before, were sent to South Carolina.

Immediately a response came to the effect that the wrong man had undoubtedly been arrested, but that he should be held until the Columbia authorities were further heard from.

It began to appear that it was a case of false imprisonment.

Captain Connolly telegraphed to South Carolina his intentions of dismissing the man at 6 o'clock unless the charges were made known and an assurance given that the right person was in charge.

About 4 o'clock, a reply came.

It asked that Lovick, by all means, be detained; that it was he, for Harmon had been found in Columbia, and Lovick had left on Wednesday, after marrying Miss Bowman, of that city.

The charge was "Leaving the state of South Carolina with intent to defraud creditors."

Lovick was accordingly locked up in Captain Manley's office. His wife remained with him, and he was put under guard by Patrolman J. H. Smith.

Lovick is hardly thirty years of age, and has a refined, intelligent look. He maintained his innocence last night as firmly as ever, declaring that he was not the man who was wanted.

His wife is but a girl, hardly twenty years of age, and her pleading looks in her husband's behalf enlisted a great deal of sympathy for them.

Lovick will be held until a requisition is gotten and he can be sent for by the Columbia chief of police.

A CROWD OF WITNESSES

Will Be Present in the Superior Court Next Monday.

When the criminal branch of the superior court is opened next Monday morning the courtroom will be crowded with people.

And it will be a motley crowd, sure enough.

All sorts and conditions of men and women will be present, and Judge Clark and Solicitor Hill will reign supreme.

On Monday morning all cases of criminals who are now out on bond will be called.

There are about one hundred of these cases.

Then in every a case it is estimated that there is an average of six witnesses.

So there will be six hundred people in the courtroom Monday morning, when business begins.

The witnesses in all these cases are being subpenaed as fast as the constables can do so, and on Monday morning they will pour into Judge Clark's courtroom in great droves.

Perhaps the most important of the bonded cases is that of Dr. Mel Martin. This will be called and set for trial one day next week.

Then the trial of E. A. Underwood will come up on Monday. Judge Spencer R. Atkinson will preside during the trial of this case, and also during the trial of the Martin case.

The trial of W. R. Heflin, charged with perjury, will also come up next week, and will occupy a day or so. Heflin has been in the Fulton county jail for two years, charged with perjury in the Eddleman case.

Solicitor Charley Hill is getting ready for the work, and next week will be a most interesting one in the superior court.

A Receiver Wanted.

Judge Marshall J. Clarke will hear an application for a receiver in the case of the Atlanta Rubber Company tomorrow.

The application is made by the Metropolitan Rubber Company and the New Jersey Rubber Company, both unsecured creditors of the Atlanta Rubber Company.

The Atlanta Rubber Company and the holders of the mortgages against it are represented by Mayson & Hill. Mr. Walter R. Brown and Culberson & Hunt represents the applicants for a receiver If a receiver is not appointed an order for the sale of the stock in bulk will be granted.

BISHOP-ELECT NELSON

Will Be Consecrated in This City at St. Philip's Church on February 25th.

In a recent issue of The Standard of the Cross, published at Philadelphia, editorial announcement is made that the consecration of Bishop-elect Nelson, of Georgia, will take place at the Church of the Nativity at South Bethlehem, Pa., on St. Paul's Day, Monday, the 25th instant.

This is a mistake. The consecration ceremonies will be odserved at St. Philip's church, this city, on February 25th.

The matter was settled at a meeting held in Atlanta last week of the central committee of the Georgia diocese.

It is the custom for the presiding bishop, which is Bishop Williams, of Connecticut, and the bishop-elect, to nominate the time and place for the ceremonies. The committee that met here last week recommended that Atlanta be nominated, and forwarded the recommendation to the presiding bishop and bishop-elect, with a request to approve their action.

Rev. William C. Hunter, of Columbus, Rev. T. C. Tupper, DD., Rev. R. S. Barrett, Messrs. Z. D. Harrison, and Thomas E. Walker, of this city, have been appointed a committee to prepare for the consecration ceremonies and a reception for the new bishop, which will be given jointly by the two parishes in this city, and the entertainment of the visiting clergy.

It is announced authoritively that Bishop Nelson will make his home in Atlanta, and live at the Normandie. There is no doubt of his intention to make Atlanta his home.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

WHOLESALE BY H. A. BOYNTON AND SHROPSHIRE & DODD, ATLANTA, GA.

SAFE BLOWERS.

They Tried to Get in Their Work on Yesterday Morning,

BUT FAILED IN TWO INSTANCES.

A Gang of Crooks for All of Whom Warrants Have Been Sworn Out are Being Looked for in Atlanta.

Burglars got in their work in good shape on Decatur street some time during night before last.

In neither instance was the affair discovered until yesterday morning when the proprietors came to open.

It must have been the work of professional crooks.

At the general store of W. D. Smith, just below Pryor street, the front door was found partly open about 6 o'clock. Inside the store things were scattered about, and it was impossible to tell just how much had been taken.

The crook or crooks got in through the front entrance. The lock had been broken right in one of the most central points in the city, the men accomplished their work and left with the door standing ajar.

Near the safe were found instruments for cracking it, but the burglars had not made any attempt to open the iron door, because they were evidently frightened away.

Yesterday morning the case was placed in the hands of detectives, while Mr. Smith was making an effort to find out the amount of goods stolen.

Just below the store, at the saloon of M. Franklin, the crooks went even further.

There they entered through the back door and their attention was directed solely to the safe.

They had begun their work on it and in that instance also had undoubtedly been scared off. A fuse and some dynamite were found yesterday, but the safe was all right.

That the work in neither place was discovered until several hours after it had been done, shows how skillfully the burglars had gone about it.

It had evidently been the same gang in both cases, for the tools at the one store and the dynamite at the other showed that their methods of operation were exactly the same.

The cases are bothering the officers a great deal. As yet they have not gotten the slightest clue to the perpetrators, who, from their daring, must have had some previous experience.

Decatur street is the most carefully patrolled in the city, and it required the shrewdest kind of work for the burglars to have accomplished what they did.

Two-thirds of the detective force is working on it.

A Big Crew Wanted.

A crew of thieves is being looked for in Atlanta by bailiffs and patrolmen.

The warrants were sworn out for them before Judge Landrum yesterday.

Oliver Green, a negro, a member of a rough and lawless gang, was arrested and he forthwith "peached" and he himself swore out the warrants.

The men are Prince Maddox, charged with carrying concealed weapons; Caesar Adams, larceny from the house and gambling; John Green, gambling; Mose Mathews, larceny from the house; Adam Johnson, carrying concealed weapons and gambling; Tom Matthews, larceny and gambling.

The warrants were placed in the hands of officers late in the afternoon and an effort will be made to run the whole gang in today. The charges are all for state offenses.

NO SHOW LAST NIGHT.

The Janauschek Company Water-Bound in Birmingham.

The footlights at DeGive's did not glow upon "The Harvest Moon" last night.

Nor was there a matinee yesterday afternoon.

Janauschek and her company were in Birmingham, hemmed in by the floods. A telegram was received by Mr. DeGive yesterday morning from Mr. W. N. Lawrence, who is with the show, stating that the company could reach Atlanta in time for the night performance. But it did not do so, as the track of the Georgia Pacific is not in a condition for travel.

An inquest will be held this morning.

THE CHILDS-PITTMAN WEDDING.

A Happy Marriage in Waynesboro—The Reception of the Muscogee Club of Columbus.

A very beautiful wedding occurred at 6 o'clock last evening when Dr. Julius A. Childs and Miss Susie Pitman were married at the home of the bride on South Pryor street. This home is known in Atlanta as the old Neal mansion, and is a very elegant and beautifully arranged one; and on this occasion every room was made radiant by beautiful floral adornments and brilliant lights. The wide corridors were banked with palms and the floral decorations were chiefly of roses, lilies of the valley and carnations. The splendidly appointed dining room was adorned in white and silver, the table being graced with many cakes, beautifully iced in white and silver, and the center piece being of lilies of the valley and maiden hair ferns.

The ceremony was performed, with solemn eloquence by Rev. Dr. McDonald, in one of the long drawing rooms, where decorations were enchanting and distinctly bride-like. The bride and groom stood under a marriage bell of white roses, out of whose pure cup this white rose of sweet young womanhood seemed to have dropped in full rounded and fragrant beauty. She wore a royal wedding gown of richest white satin, embroidered in a silver design of lilies of the valley, and a large bouquet of these blossoms was carried in her hands. The white illusion veil confined by pearl pins and a spray of the same flowers fell over a face and throat of matchless loveliness. Her ornaments were diamonds and pearls.

She was preceded by two lovely little bridesmaids, Miss Ella May Thornton and Miss Annie Manly, dressed in chic gowns of white chiffon over pink silk.

The maid of honor, Miss Eloise Pitman, wore an exquisite toilet of white chiffon over silk.

The groom entered with his best man, Mr. L. D. Childs, of Chester, S. C. The happy pair in their dark and fair style made foils for each other, and seemed, indeed, most perfectly mated. The relatives and intimate friends of Dr. and Mrs. Childs were present at the ceremony, after which the guests enjoyed a delightful reception.

At 8 o'clock Dr. and Mrs. Childs left for South Carolina, where they will spend two weeks and return to Atlanta, where they will be at home to their friends at the residence of Mr. E. H. Thornton on Washington street. Many elegant presents were received.

Miss Pitman belongs to one of the oldest and most aristocratic families in Georgia. Her father is Judge Daniel Pitman and her mother is a daughter of the late Mr. John Neal, one of the wealthiest and most highly honored citizens Atlanta ever knew. Miss Pitman is a girl of refined and enchanting personal loveliness, and her brilliant mind has had every advantage for the highest cultivation. Her nature is sweet, lovable, womanly, and she is sure to crown with continuous happiness the life of the man she has chosen.

Dr. Childs belongs to a splendid old South Carolina family, and is himself a noble representativet of his race, being a handsome, polished and courtly gentleman, possessed of every attribute to win the love of a woman. He has been in Atlanta only a few years, but has already gained a fine practice and made many warm friends. He is connected with the Atlanta Medical college, and is steadily winning his way to renown.

The society event of the season in Waynesboro yesterday was the marriage of Mr. Charles A. Scudder to Miss Nina L. Wilkins, daughter of Major W. A. Wilkins, of that place. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Bascom Anthony, pastor of the Methodist church, using a ring in the ceremony. Mrs. John D. Munnerlyn presided at the organ, and the bride entered on the arm of her father, preceded by Miss Louie Neely, the groom entering at a side entrance. The bride wore a traveling dress of navy blue cloth, with black trimmings and black hat, carrying a beautiful bouquet of white rosebuds. Miss Neely, who was the only bridesmaid, wore a tan-colored silk with a lovely bouquet of pink roses. The bridal presents were costly and valuable selections of her many friends, and among these can be mentioned a check from the father of the bride, Major W. A. Wilkins, for the splendid sum of $20,000. The new and beautifully finished Methodist church was decorated with mistletoe and bamboo, the rostrum and tables were also covered with rare exotics, and presented an exquisit display of blooming flowers in midwinter of every hue and color imaginable. Messrs. W. H. Davis, R. C. Neely and W. A. Wilkins, Jr., of Waynesboro, and John D. Carswell, of Savannah, Ga., acted as ushers to a large and admiring audience. The groom had in waiting at the depot a beautiful palace car for the bridal party, which was taken to Augusta by the evening passenger train at 4 o'clock. The ceremony was performed at 12 o'clock, high noon, and every bell and engine whistle in the entire city rang out in glad tidings the sweet harmony of the marriage bells. Mr. C. A. Scudder is an enterprising merchant of Athens, and that city has won a most estimable and Christian lady in the bride, who is admired and loved by her many friends here and in other cities of Georgia.

SHOT AND KILLED.

Two Negroes Engage in a Friendly Quarrel About a Quarter.

ONE DARES THE OTHER TO PICK IT UP.

It Leads to the Usual Results—One Negro Is Killed and the Other Runs and Is Arrested by an Officer.

A playful quarrel led to a tragedy at Hoffman's saloon, on Broad street, last evening.

Sol Winston, a negro driver, was shot and instantly killed by another negro, Thomas Lilly.

A quarter played a principal part.

The affair happened shortly after 7 o'clock.

The two negroes had entered the rear of the saloon—the Hunter street entrance—one just after the other.

When Lilly reached the bar he ordered a drink, and, turning around, noticed Winston. They had been casual acquaintances, and began talking together.

A few minutes had passed, when Winston placed his hand in his pocket, and, drawing a quarter, threw it on the floor with the remark:

"I dare you to pick that up."

Lilly laughed and started to stoop for it, when Charley Williams, a negro bartender, asked the two to quit their racket.

"Come on over to the corner of the room and I'll pick it up," said Lilly. The coin was taken and the men went over to the place designated. They were followed by several other negroes who had become interested in the friendly encounter.

"Now pick it up," called out Winston, as he threw the quarter to the floor again.

Immediately Lilly leaned over and started to grab the coin.

As he did so Winston pushed him back. He placed his right hand in his pocket and with his left continued to push Lilly away.

In an instant a pistol was drawn, and raising it over his shoulder, Lilly brought it down with the barrel aimed at his opponent's face. Winston evidently thought that Lilly meant merely to frighten him off, for he continued pushing, with his right hand still fumbling in his pocket.

Once more the pistol was raised and brought down, and the pushing still kept up. Lilly raised it again without a change in the shoving programme.

The fourth time he drew it, and, quickly bringing it down, the negro fired.

The ball struck Winston in the breast, piercing his right lung. The wounded man stooped down, picked up the quarter and started toward the door.

On the step he fell and, while the blood poured forth from his mouth, he was groaning in his death agony.

A minute later he was dead.

In the meanwhile Lilly had darted out and jumped from the platform into the street. Williams, the bartender, immediately leaped over the counter and followed. At the corner of Forsyth and Hunter, Lilly threw his pistol away. But he was not fleet enough, for a moment later he was in the grasp of Patrolman Bowie, who had just come up. Williams and Patrolman Wimbush assisted him.

The officers conducted the negro to the station house. He made no resistance, being more frightened than otherwise. Not long after the pistol was found by Sergeant Moss, with one chamber empty.

At the doorway where Winston had fallen his pockets were searched, but neither a knife nor any other weapon was found. The body was removed to Howard's, where an inquest will be held today.

Winston was a driver for a furniture wagon and was about thirty years of age.

Lilly, the negro who did the shooting, was a young boy hardly twenty years old. For a long while he has worked as porter for Mr. H. B. Elston, the Alabama street tailor.

At the station house he expressed regrets at the occurrence and asserted that the pistol "jest went off 'fore he knowed it."

"Why did you draw it?" was asked.

"Well, the other fellow was going to pull his knife on me," said Lilly, in a tremulous tone.

But the dead man's pockets disproved that. "I runned 'cause I got skeered," continued the negro. "Is he dead?" was then asked.

On being told in the affirmative, Lilly sat down and ceased to talk.

Quick as a wink the clothes are washed, the paint scoured, the dishes washed, the house itself and every thing in it made bright and clean.

Lowry Banking Company dividend, 4 per cen t, declared on the 1st and payable on the 10th instant, indicates the prosperity of that institution.

After the payment of this dividend there remains surplus and individual profits of some $100,000, a fund sufficient to warrant a permanent dividend rate of at least 8 per cent per annum.

Savannah, Americus and Montgomery first mortgage 6s were listed on the New York stock exchange yesterday.

The appointment of a receiver for the Atlanta and Florida road was deferred this morning until Saturday next, and I hear some talk about the possibility of the Georgia Improvement Company stockholders furnishing money to relieve the company of its immediate embarrassments, but this is mere rumor and may have no foundation in fact.

Some nineteen years ago the Montgomery and Eufaula road defaulted, was placed in the hands of a receiver and operated by him until 1879, when it was sold to W. M. Wadley, the Louisville and Nashville competing at the sale, for $2,120,000, or sufficient to pay the principal and interest of the bonded debt and something to the stockholders, though I do not remember the amount.

The Atlanta and Florida may become a bone of contention in the future, as the Montgomery and Eufaula did, and command a price which will make a big rift in the cloud now hanging over it and the people who are interested as stockholders.

A gentleman, a stockholder in the Central, suggests today that perhaps the minority holders, who talk of and favor the disruption of the lease to the Georgia Pacific, are not aware that the Richmond and Danville owns absolutely a majority of Central stock, and breaking the lease would leave them in control of the property without any sort of obligation as to dividends.

This is a strong point, and worthy the consideration of those interested.

It is currently believed that those now in control of the Richmond and Danville will not actively resist an effort to break the lease, and that they would be greatly pleased if some one on the outside would start the music.

THE NEW YORK MARKET.

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, January 14.—The New York stock market was, in the main, comparatively quiet today with a drooping tendency during most of the time, and operations resulted in material losses for a few stocks and immaterial changes for the rest. The death of the heir presumptive to the British throne had its influence in London this morning, and there was great expectation on the part of the bearish traders that the demoralization of foreign markets in conseqence of this event would be reflected here by liberal sales for foreign account. In a measure this was realized, but the dribblings of stocks from foreign sources were easily absorbed, and while they gave heavy temper to earlier dealings, they had little influence later in the day, and stocks which have an international market were in the main no weaker than the remainder of the list. The market was rather unsettled all day long, and a while after the opening decline, which extended to 1 per cent in Missouri Pacific, 1⅜ per cent in Sugar, and fractional amounts in the rest of the list, there was a firmer tone during the forenoon, but later prices generally settled away and failed to rally at any time. The movement, however, was slow, and, in most stocks, amounted to small fractions only. Industrials were firm, and Sugar, after its marked loss at opening, actually scored a fractional advance during the day. The strong point in the market was Chesapeake and Ohio shares, and preferred stock showed most pronounced strength, while common was specially active. The general list was unusually barren of feature, and, while low-priced shares were in many cases active, they were moved in narrow limits, and their final changes are generally insignificant. St. Paul was specially active again, and fairly led the movement of the day, its final loss being larger than that of any other stock. The market closed quiet but weak, at about the lowest figures of the day. The list is almost invariably lower, but the majority show only slight losses. St. Paul is down 1⅛, Atchison, 1⅛, and Missouri Pacific, 1 per cent, while Chesapeake and Ohio first preferred rose 2½, and second preferred 1½ per cent.

J. S. Bache & Co.'s Stock Letter.

NEW YORK, January 14.—The London market was disturbed on account of the death of the duke of Clarence and Avondale, and they sold here quite a number of stocks. They would have sold more, but as the market did not take their stocks well, they held off. The gossip today was altogether about yesterday's meeting of the Western Traffic Association. Mr. Gould's position at yesterday's meeting was very aggressive, and as he was beaten in what he asked for, he was reported to be in a very ugly mood. There are still some negotiations pending to keep Mr. Gould in good humor, but we think the result will be that he will wreak his revenge by creating a disturbance in southwestern rates. There is no doubt that Mr. Gould has been beaten in everything he has undertaken in the last month or two, and he feels very spiteful for this reason. This seems to be the general sentiment in the exchange, and the traders sold the market down and caught a number of stop orders. The weak feeling abroad helped them considerably. The short interest has no doubt increased and Mr. Cammack sold quite a little stock. The short interest nevertheless is limited. Tomorrow's market will depend on the London quotations. If they should buy a small rally may ensue; if not we look for lower prices, as the bulls are beginning to lose their hold on the market.

Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular.

NEW YORK, January 14.—In our market a pronounced response to the better tone of foreign advices was prevented by the promulgation of a crop estimate of 8,500,000 bales by a prominent New Orleans authority, whose previous correctness, conservatism and conscientiousness is highly regarded. The opening prices here were about the same as last night's prices. This was a disappointment that reacted upon Liverpool and induced a loss of 2@3-64d before the close of that market. At 1 o'clock prices were about 4 points below last evening's close. New Orleans has been relatively much stronger than New York, and March contracts there are about 4 below the same position here, whereas two days ago the difference was 5 points and over. We understand that both in Great Britain and upon the continent spinners are making arrangements o abandon almost entirely the use of East India cotton, the American grown product at these prices giving far more satisfactory results, both in character of goods produced and profit afforded. After 1 o'clock it became apparent that the day's receipts would not exceed 16,000 bales. This fact, together with very light receipts at the known interiors imparted fresh strength to the market, which improved gradually, closing firm some 6 points above last evening. The short interest has unquestionably been increased rather than reduced today, and the speculative situation has been to that extent strengthened. It may be confidently predicted that as long as the movement continues light consumers are likely to be very free buyers, and fictitious crop estimates will be disregarded unless sustained by heavy receipts.

Lehman Bros.' Cotton Letter.

By private wire to A. P. Youngblood.

NEW YORK, January 14—Our market today presented an extraordinarily nervous and sensitive character. The opening was disappointing in view of Liverpool's advance. Subsequently, however, a sudden demand sprang up and prices advanced almost without sales 3@4 points. In the midst of the excitement Liverpool was quoted lower, and the market became quieter, ruling irregular during the whole of the day. Foreign advices reported a loss of 2@3-64d from the best of this morning, which was due to the further increase or expected increase on the part of Neill Bro's over their recent estimate. It was also said that in certain sections factories are refusing to receive further consignments in view of the scarcity of storage room and financial inability to carry the same. This is simply a matter of talk and may be taken for what it is worth. At anyrate, shortly after noon values sold off quickly on but trifling transactions, looking as if a break was imminent. This break, however, did not follow, and on small receipts at the interior points prices again stiffened and at the close buying on the part of shorts quickly advanced prices to the highest of the day. We have rarely found such an irregular market as we have had this afternoon. It has been almost impossible to quote the same within a point or two in different sections of the ring. If we could feel that receipts would remain as they now are we should feel extremely bullish. The only point in doubt is whether the weather has any effect on this matter. At any rate, although we may see reactions, we as before are favorably inclined towards cotton. These prices in themselves must be an inducement to investors. Even though we should have temporary declines the ultimate future will, we believe, show a higher range in the course of time.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, January 14.—Wheat was rather nervous and subject to numerous fluctuations during the day. In the earlier part of the session the market was strong most of the time, but toward the close the feeling was one of weakness, accompanied by a decided decline, which left prices at the close considerably lower than yesterday's last figures. There was very little wheat for sale, liquidation having been apparently very complete, and buying was fair, both to cover sales and for scalp on bull side. There was recession after the opening on foreign advices quoting weakness in prices, which caused free selling. Shorts took advantage of the situation to buy, causing a rally, but in the afternoon it was rumored that Russia was preparing to remove the wheat export prohibition, which caused another break. The market rallied again on free buying, but broke once more to inside figures, and closed easy. May opened excited and ragged, 91⅞@92⅛c being paid at about same time in different parts of the pit, broke to 91⅝c, firmed up, weakened to 91½c, rallied to 92⅛c, broke to and closed at 91⅛c.

Corn was quiet and steady, with feeling inclined to firmness, though there were no material changes in values. As a rule, trade was slow and the market without much feature. Fluctuations were confined to a range of ¼c, closing at bottom and close to yesterday's last figures.

Oats were quiet, steady and without feature.

Hog products opened without change, and pork made a slight advance in early trading in sympathy with wheat, but heavy receipts of hogs and free selling caused weak feeling to follow, which prevailed during most of the remainder of the session. The close shows loss in value compared with yesterday of 20c in pork, 5c in lard and 7½@10c in ribs.

The leading futures ranged as follows in Chicago today.

Lamson Bros. & Co.'s Grain Letter.

CHICAGO, January 14.—Judging from some of the cables this morning our foreign friends who send out the market reports are as unable to tell just what their market is as some of our local speculators are to tell what this market is going to be. One local house reported London was ½ to 1 pence higher and strong. The board of trade cable reported about ½ pence higher. Beerbohm reported 2 to 6 pence lower. Two or three private cables agreed with the Beerbohm. The clearances, which were nearly 900,000, wheat and wheat flour was the strongest element. The market opened and hung around 92 cents a good portion of the session. Some shorts were liberal buyers. Later cables, however, nearly all agree that the markets abroad were lower. They report that Russia is about to rescind her recent prohibitory ukase which weakened the confidence of holders—the market closing at the lowest point of the day would indicate that another little bull deal had gone wrong. Some fancy prices were paid for some fancy mill wheat, but as a rule the off-grades and sample lots did not respond to the advance in the speculative futures.

Corn and oats were dull and inactive. Nearly all of the cash stuff was disposed of at about yesterday's prices, perhaps a shade firmer.

Provision market was dull and dragging. Local traders and scalpers who had a profit were sellers, causing a decline of 7½ to 10 cents in lard and ribs and about 20 cents in pork.

THE SCOTCH-IRISH.

Elaborate Preparations Being Made for Their Reception.

FULL LIST OF THE COMMITTEES

Who Will Have Charge of the Convention, as Well as of Those Who Will Entertain the Delegates.

The national Scotch-Irish congress, which is to meet in Atlanta about the 1st of May, will bring to the city a body of distinguished and representative men from all parts of the United States, Canada and other countries.

Among those to be expected are Colonel A. K. McClure, of Philadelpeia; Hon. William Wurt Henry, of Virginia; Colonel Thomas T. Wright, of Tennessee; Hon. W. C. P. Breckinridge, of Kentucky; Judge Lindsay, of the supreme court of Kentucky; ex-Governor Proctor Knott, of that state; Hon. A. S. Colyar and Hon. Benton McMillin, of Tennessee; Governor Campbell, of Ohio; General R. D. Johnston, of Birmingham; Dr. J. H. Dryson, of Huntsville; Dr. John Hall, Mr. John Inman and Mr. Robert Bonner, of New York; Dr. J. S. McIntosh, of Philadelphia, and a number of other gentlemen of national reputation.

The selection of Atlanta as the place of meeting is a great compliment; especially as an invitation to California was accompanied by the offer to furnish to the visitors free transportation on their trip across the continent. The cordial invitation extended by the Scotch-Irish of Georgia, by the governor of the state, the mayor and general council of Atlanta, Confederate Veterans' Association, board of trade, Young Men's Christian Association, O. M. Mitchell Post, Grand Army of the Republic, the Northern Society of Georgia, and Ministers' Association, was unanimously accepted, notwithstanding San Francisco's tempting offer.

The Scoth-Irish societies in Georgia now desire to give their honored visitors a reception worthy of the state in which we live, and of the race. To this end the following committees have been appointed, and are requested to give their attention to carrying out the parts assigned to them in fulfillment of the programme:

HERE IT IS AGAIN.

The Railroad Commission Goes for the Express Companies.

THEY WILL CUT DOWN THEIR RATES.

Some Important Business Before the Commission Yesterday Morning. Express Companies to Taw.

The people of Georgia will have cheaper express, just as they will have cheaper telegraphy.

And for both of these they will owe thanks to the Georgia railroad commissioners.

The last legislature placed the express companies and telegraph companies doing business in Georgia under control of the railroad commission to a considerable extent.

If anybody believed that the commissioners would sit back content to be silently clothed in this "brief authority" without manipulating their power he was very much mistaken.

Already the commissioners have brought the telegraph companies to taw, and now comes the Southern Express Company to get its dose.

Yesterday the railroad commission was busy fixing up its schedule of rates for the express companies, and there is noticeable on that schedule a significant reduction.

At present the Southern Express Company charges not less than 25 cents for each package sent by the company. No matter how small the package or parcel, no matter how short the distance it is to be sent, a charge of 25 cents or more is put on it. If a package weighing a pound, or a half pound as to that, is to be sent no farther than from Atlanta to Decatur, the quarter of a dollar must be planked down to pay the freight.

The commissioners are going to put a stop to this.

Yesterday they invited Mr. Butler Mays, assistant superintendent of the Southern Express Company, to appear before them and render an argument in behalf of the express company against their contemplated reductions in express charges. Mr. Mays will go before them, and give a full explanation as to why the rates are as high as they are. He will give a very fair and free argument in favor of the Southern Express Company, but to judge from what one of the commissioners said yesterday, the express company's claims will not be swallowed down as easily as they might.

The commission seems bent upon breaking, at least, one rule of the company, and that is the one referred to above, the charging of not less than 25 cents for any package or parcel shipped.

The case will come up for a final decision on the 26th instant, and the rates as fixed by the railroad commission will be published on that day.

This Is Very, Very Strange.

To a reasonable, discerning man, it would seem impossible to convict a prisoner of forgery, if that prisoner could not write his own name, nor read it if it were written for him.

And yet there is a man of just this description now wearing the chains and stripes and slaving away in the ranks of Georgia convicts.

His name is George W. Sprattin, and he was convicted of forging a check on the Gate City National bank and sentenced right here in Atlanta to five years in the chaingang.

He now petitions for pardon, and bases his petition upon the ground that he cannot read nor write, and had a very poor defense in court on trial, his lawyer being drunk and he having no money to procure more competent legal counsel.

He states in his petition his age, and that he has served two years out of his five; that he was a confederate soldier and was wounded in the battles around Atlanta. He has rheumatism, and since his incarceration his wife has died, leaving his poor little children to struggle as best they can against a hard, cold world and cruel fate.

There is something pathetic in this man's appeal for executive clemency. He begs to be restored to his dear little motherless children, that he might even in his old age give to them that support which they need, and which an innocent man has a right to give.

He will doubtless be pardoned.

A Convict Dies.

Yesterday news was received at the office of Colonel Jones, keeper of the Georgia penitentiary, that Henry Heard, convicted of mayhem, died from consumption out at the Chattahoochee convict camps, near this city.

He was tried in the courts of Savannah for cutting off another man's ears, and was sentenced for three years in the penitentiary. Usually, when convicted of this crime, prisoners are sent up for life.

It is said that there are thirty very severe cases of grip out at the Chattahoochee camps among the convicts.

EDGEWOOD AVENUE THEATER.

Last night "My Boy" and "Poor Pillicoddy" were given for the fifth time this week to a large audience at Edgewood Avenue theater.

The stock company is daily growing stronger. It is the best seen in Atlanta in years, and the plays presented are acted in excellent style.

Mr. Wilfred Clarke is beyond doubt one of the best comedians on the American stage. He possesses every element necessary to make a great actor. One would hardly recognize in Johnny Timmins the same person who plays Dr. Pangloss or 'Zekiel Homespun.

On Monday next "The Ticket of Leave Man" will be put on. This play was first produced in London in 1863, and in this play William J. Florence first became famous, as Bob Brierly. Mr. Clarke will play this role next week.

They Want Better Mail Service.

LAGRANGE, Ga., January 14.—[Special.]—Many complaints are being made by the people along the line of the Macon and Birmingham road, on account of the very poor mail facilities.

This road has been in operation about twelve months, and yet no contract has ever been made for the transportation of mails.

This, together with the express business, would authorize the management of the road to keep up a regular passenger schedule. As it is, passengers are compelled to submit to the tiresome and almost unendurable task of riding on a mixed train.

These arrangements will not only be a great convenience to the public generally along the line, but we believe it would be to "Uncle Sam's" interest.

RIJAMO RIJAMO

Did your Coffee please you this morning?

RIJAMO, RIJAMO.

We know of nothing more exhilarating than a cup of fine hot Coffee for breakfast, nor of anything more disappointing than poor Coffee. Why buy poor, weak Coffee, when you can buy our Rijamo Coffee at 35 cents per pound. It is a combination Coffee of the finest grades. It is always uniform, always good, and will please you every time.

These cold mornings call, also, for Buckwheat Cakes. We have the pure, plain country Buckwheat. Try some of it, and when you are eating some of the sweet and delicious cakes which can be made of it, you will thank us for the suggestion. Our pure Vermont Maple Syrup eats well with Buckwheat Cakes, and in fact with everything else. It is the pure Maple, and hence, has that fine, genuine Maple flavor, which nothing else has.

Then, there is fine Jersey Butter. We know that we can say without fear of contradiction, that we have the finest Jersey Butter ever brought to Atlanta. It is pure, rich, yellow Jersey Butter. We sell it at 35 cents per pound, and the Butter that you are paying 40 cents for is not near as good. Come try it and let us send it to you regularly. You will also find every variety of the finest quality and purest Groceries at our store cheaper than anywhere else.

We are selling the finest Maine Sweet Corn, either Thurber's "Windham" brand, or the "Sunbeam," at 15 cents per can. Can you afford to pay 20 cents for it? Those fine California Peaches, Pears, Apricots, White Cherries, will sell for the very low price of $3.50 per dozen. Their fine flavor and low price commend them to all. Remember, you save money by buying from us.

Our large sales insure fresh goods, and we guarantee every article to be of the very best quality and of absolute purity.

RING OUT THE OLD.

A New Military Advisory Board to Meet Today.

THE OLD ONE TURNED OFF ABRUPTLY.

What the New Men Are Apt to Do Today After Organizing—This Year's Encampment to Come Up.

The state military advisory board of Georgia will meet today at 10 o'clock in the office of the adjutant general.

And it will be a new board almost out and out.

The board that will meet today is composed of Colonel John McIntosh Kell, adjutant and inspector general; A. J. West, quartermaster general; A. W. Walton, of Rome; Colonel William Girard, of Savannah; Colonel Edward L. Wright, of Albany; Colonel W. L. Calhoun, of Atlanta; Colonel Goodloe H. Yancey, of Athens; Captain J. L. Hardeman, of Macon; Captain J. S. Thomas, of Brunswick; Captain C. S. Irwin, of Washington and Captain H. B. McMaster, of Waynesboro.

Out of this membership to meet today, it will be seen that only four are members of the old advisory board. They are Colonel Kell, Colonel A. J. West, Colonel Girard and Colonel Walton.

The old advisory board was composed of the following members: Colonel Kell, Colonel William Girard, of Savannah; Colonel C. M. Wylie, of Macon; Colonel W. F. Jones, of Elberton; Captain Price Gilbert, of Columbus; Roff Sims, of Macon; A. J. West, of Atlanta; A. W. Walton, of Rome; G. A. Mercer, of Savannah, and G. B. Forbes, Atlanta.

All of these men are military men, and certainly had at heart the military interests of Georgia. Under their manipulation the volunteer forces of Georgia were kept up to a high standard of military excellence. The interest in military affairs of the state was elevated to a higher plane than it had ever reached before.

Under their splendid guidance the state military encampment of last year was made a glorious success, and a new life was infused into the companies of volunteers all over Georgia.

"There was something very sudden and strange about the turning out of the old board," said a prominent military man of Georgia yesterday. "I do not mean to criticise the governor's action in the matter, nor do I mean to say a word against the new board; they are all good men for the place, but I do think that while the old board started the military encampment they should have been allowed to carry it out to a permanent and successful establishment. They had charge of last year's encampment, and they made it a success. It was only a temporary arrangement, so why should the scheme be snatched away from them and put in the hands of men less familiar with it, though, perhaps, fully capable of carrying on the affairs of the encampment?"

A good many who are interested in the military affairs of Georgia have questioned the wisdom of Governor Northen's action just for this reason, though none may doubt the full capability of the new members.

Today's Meeting.

The first thing before the new board today will be to organize fully and get ready for business.

They will discuss the encampment matter, too. It will be merely a preliminary discussion, however.

The list of offers for the permanent encampment site will be made up, and the claims of each considered.

There is now about $6,000 worth of property belonging to the state at Chickamauga, consisting of tent floors, mattresses, stoves, wheelbarrows and other property. This will be removed to whatever place is decided upon for this year's encampment.

Atlanta's Proposition.

Atlanta will make an effort to secure the encampment at Piedmont park for 1892.

The Piedmont exposition directors held a meeting yesterday, and it was decided to await the result of today's meeting of the advisory board and then see what shall be done in furthering Atlanta's claim for the place. It is more than probable that a strenuous effort will be made to bring the encampment here.

THE ENCAMPMENT.

Macon Will Offer Several Thousand Dollars in Cash and a Large Area of Ground.

MACON, Ga., January 14.—[Special.]—Macon will again be a bidder for the permanent encampment. This is certain. The advisory board meets in Atlanta tomorrow and Colonel C. M. Wiley, of the Second Georgia regiment, will enter a bill in behalf of certain land owners in Macon.

It is said that the bid will be from the Ocmulgee Land and Improvement Company, J. C. McBurney, president, and the offer will consist of about twenty acres of land, and several thousand dollars.

The land lies beautifully and will be a splendid site for the encampment. It is very elevated, and quite dry and healthy. It lies to the north of the city and just out of the corporate limits. It lies near to the track of the East Tennessee railroad, which runs from Macon to Atlanta, and convenient, easy transportation facilities will thus be given. An electric street railway line will be built from the city to the site and thus rapid connection be given with the town.

Another Bid.

It is rumored that there may be another bid in the name of the city of Macon. This offer will embrace the same site, at Bellevue, which was tendered last year to the advisory board and duly accepted as the permanent site, but the matter went by default on account of a defect in the bill passed by the legislature. The public is thoroughly informed of all the advantages of this site, its healthfulness, elevation, general location, accessibility to the Central railroad and the street electric railway, water facilities, etc.

Captain J. L. Hardeman leaves today for Atlanta to attend the meeting of the military advisory board tomorrow.

Griffin Wants the Encampment.

GRIFFIN, Ga., January 14.—[Special.]—Griffin will be in the contest for the state military encampment. At a meeting of the city council held this afternoon, the city agreed to furnish water and lights on the grounds. A subsequent citizens meeting was held when the matter was fully discussed, after which a strong committee was appointed to go to Atlanta tomorrow to present Griffin's bid and Griffin's advantages for locating the encampment here.

Crawfish Springs Has Money.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., January 14.—[Special.]—The Crawfish Springs Land Company placed $1,000,000 of its bonds in New York today. Six hundred thousand dollars will be spent in the improvement of Chickamauga. This means the Georgia encampment will go back there.

GONE HOME.

Myrtle Lou Perkins Is Called for by Her Brother and Leaves with Him.

Myrtle Lou Perkins, the girl who was supposed to have been sent to a convent on Sunday, had been kept in the city. Her whereabouts had been kept secret from the public.

For some time Captain Connolly had been in correspondence with the girl's family. She owned a great deal of property in Taliaferro county and was wanted to attend to it.

Yesterday Walter Perkins, the girl's brother, came to Atlanta to get his sister. She went with him willingly and last night was back again at her home.

She left it less than two months ago with William Stone. Though she has been married twice, once in Taliaferro county, and another time at the stationhouse in Atlanta, she still retains her maiden name.

ARCHIBALD FORBES

The great war correspondent, in a magazine article some months ago, told how the news of a British battle in Afghanistan, that occurred about 5 P. M., got telegraphed around the world and was published in a San Francisco morning paper of the same day some seven or eight hours before it happened.

The history of Clothing selling in Atlanta bids fair to get even worse muddled. However, we are the patriarchs of the business. Don't you remember the stir we create regularly at this season of the year with our great reductions?
